Odello East: Will it be preserved or developed?

By SCOTT BREARTON

AS ONE travels south on Highway 1 past the Carmel River, a distinct change in scenery is evident.

The view is that of the Odello artichoke fields, a subtle transition from the world of asphalt and suburbia into more natural surroundings. For many, the journey to Big Sur begins here, the first taste of what will be an adventure of mountain and sea. To the east, the level green fields spread to the northernmost peaks of the Santa Lucia Range. To the west is a glimpse of the mighty Pacific Ocean.

But this landmark property on the east side of Highway 1 — known as Odello East — is currently threatened by development.

The Odello family has tentative approval to subdivide. See ODELLO page 10

From KCBA to ESPN

■ Carmel's Craig Kilborn makes meteoric jump to the big leagues

By DOUG THOMPSON

LOCAL TELEVISION anchors come and go with such frequency that it becomes difficult to remember who they were and when they left.

Then there's Craig Kilborn, formerly of KCBA-TV 35. For those who were wondering whatever became of that station's full-time sportscaster, part-time comedian, a bit of channel surfing will turn up Kilborn in the most astonishing of places.

Would you believe ESPN, the 24-hour sports programming network?

Indeed, Kilborn, who lived next to Katy's Place in downtown Carmel for the past three years, even surprised himself by making the meteoric rise from the Salinas Fox affiliate to ESPN, where he will be co-anchor of the SportsCenter half-hour news program that can be seen live at 11:30 p.m. in this area.

You could say Kilborn's ascent would be akin to a baseball player going from the Class A level of the minor leagues to the majors in one giant leap. It's like rocketing from the Salinas Spurs to, say, the New York Yankees. That isn't a knock on KCBA, but even Kilborn's new associates marvel at his fairy tale story.

"Around ESPN, they have been telling me that they've never heard of such a big jump," Kilborn told The Carmel Pine Cone by phone in his first media interview from his new office in Bristol, Conn. "In fact when Dan Patrick, Bob Ley and Chris Berman (ESPN anchors) heard I was from this area, they without fail would ask, 'Why the heck did you leave?'"

Kilborn said he has received a very warm reception from the ESPN gang since arriving for work Sept. 13. He's obviously receiving attention, as Patrick, in an off-the-mike comment just as things were going haywire on the prime time SportsCenter set, shouted in Kilborn's direction, "Is there by any chance an opening in Carmel?!"

His big chance

Just as Patrick, Ley and Berman — three of ESPN's most recognized studio personalities — understand there's more to life than an area's beauty, Kilborn is keenly cognizant this is his big chance.

CRAIG KILBORN is new late night co-anchor of ESPN's SportsCenter.

"I'm real fortunate," said Kilborn, 29, who inked a three-year contract with ESPN. "Openings like this don't happen all that often."

Lady Luck was shining on Kilborn as well. He had informed KCBA of his intentions to leave the station at the end of July, a few weeks before the ESPN offer came through. His personal goal at the time was to push through a brainchild of his, a sports comedy show called "World's Greatest Athletes."

If all went according to plan, Kilborn was hopeful his idea would. See KILBORN back page

1 year later, Jack Faia recalls Hurricane Iniki

By SUSAN BECK

IF YOU want to avoid a hurricane, ask Jack Faia where he's planning to take his next vacation.

Faia, a children's dentist in Monterey, who lived in Carmel until a few years ago, has a way of being in the right place at the wrong time.

Last September, Faia decided to finish up a tour with the Monterey Bay Chapter Los Medicos Voladores in Ecuador by going to Hawaii with his wife, Tina, "to have a relaxing time."

The couple was scheduled to leave Poipu Beach on Kauai Saturday, Sept. 12, 1992 so that Faia could be back to work Monday morning.

At 4 a.m. Friday, Tina's mother called from the States to forewarn them that a hurricane was going to hit. She had heard about it on the news.

Faia recalls clearly telling his mother-in-law, "Oh, it's not going to hit us because they would have told us."

However, within a very short time, Faia discovered that a hurricane called Iniki was indeed headed straight for Kauai and was expected to hit by noon.

The hotel's management where the Faia's were staying had decided to wait for the guests to wake up before telling them about any impending danger.

Faia was not terribly alarmed about Iniki because his experience last year during Hurricane Bob on Nantucket Island on the East Coast had proven to be uneventful.

"At that point," he remembers, "I still thought I was going to be flying out on Friday."

HURRICANE INIKI left widespread destruction in its wake, including severe damage to many hotels.

While the Faia's never cared for the large, ugly, modern high-rise Westin Hotel on Kauai, it was now beginning to take on a new look.

"It turned out to be a beautiful place because it became our shelter," reflected Faia.

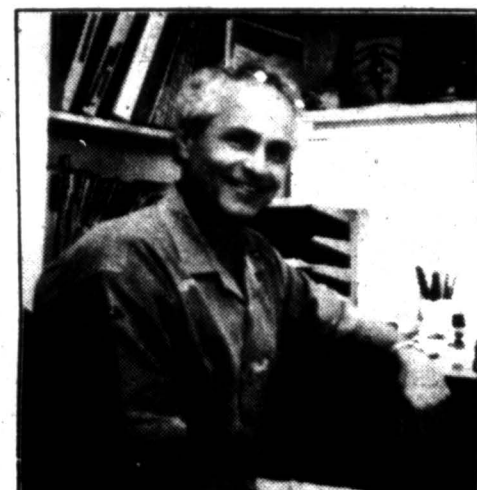

Keeping in mind his past experience with high winds, Faia kept his rental car and parked it at the hotel away from the trees with the front windshield facing the wind. His was the only car spared during the gusting winds that reached 227 mph, while 80-foot waves tore most everything around to shreds.

"I wanted to keep my car," said Faia. "I had Monday morning patients, and I still thought I was going to be driving to the airport."

By noon, about 400 people filled the ballroom shelter of the Westin Hotel. Iniki hit about two hours later.

Faia had selected a table in the farthest corner of the ballroom away from the chandeliers. Before the doors were shut, the rain outside was blowing sideways. All contact with the outside world was cut off. There was no electricity, and every other

Ex-candidate crosses party lines to back Patton

By DOUG THOMPSON

GARY PATTON, Democratic candidate for the 27th State Assembly District, received an endorsement Tuesday from a most unlikely individual — one of the two unsuccessful Republican candidates in the Aug. 31 at-large primary.

And while Republican candidate Bruce McPherson was playing down Carl Cieslikowski's endorsement of Patton, other political observers were having difficulty recalling the last time the Monterey Bay region had seen a similar party crossover.

And was Cieslikowski, who netted just 3 percent of the Aug. 31 overall vote, concerned about a backlash from fellow Republicans?

"At least I'll be able to sleep at night," said Cieslikowski, a lifelong Republican. "This campaign is for the people of this district. And Gary is bringing the citizens back into the issues."

Cieslikowski, a Monterey County probation officer, said he had individual 2 1/2 hour meetings with both Patton and McPherson following the primary.

"I was impressed with Gary and by his answers," Cieslikowski said in a press conference held on the steps leading into the Monterey County Courthouse. "He has a clear grasp of the issues."

McPherson, in a phone interview Tuesday after speaking to the Carmel Valley Rotary Club, played down the importance of the endorsement leading up to the Nov. 2 election.

"It's one perennial candidate endorsing another perennial candidate," said McPherson, former editor of The Santa Cruz Sentinel. "It was somewhat of a surprise, but not a shock."

While McPherson said he has received the endorsement of Susan Whitman, the other Republican in the primary, he had expected to gain Cieslikowski's backing, based on what the Republican challenger told him on Aug. 28 at a Pine Cone-sponsored candidates' forum in Carmel.

"Carl came over to me and told me he liked my viewpoints and in the event I should get the nomination, that he would support me," McPherson recalled. "And Carl wasn't the first person to tell me of his endorsement decision — I guess that's not his style."

Cieslikowski had a different version, however, when asked McPherson's reaction to his decision.

"He was disappointed, but I explained my reasons why," said Cieslikowski, who registered 1,422 votes in the election three weeks ago. "My endorsement was about who can best lead in these hard times."

Patton, a Santa Cruz County Supervisor for 19 years, called Cieslikowski's crossover endorsement "unprecedented and significant."

"We need to find ways to work together," Patton said. "We are going to have to start cooperating across the boundaries of partisanship if we are going to make California government work."

Cieslikowski produced a list of issues in which he is in concert with Patton, but pointed to one common denominator in particular — the candidates' position on money contributed by political action committees (PACs).

"PAC money is destroying the fabric of this state," Cieslikowski said. "They are buying our legislators. And Gary won't have any part of that."

Neither Patton nor Cieslikowski accepted any PAC money during the primary, and Patton is continuing that posture in the current election.

Although McPherson was unable to gain the endorsement of both Whitman and Cieslikowski, Patton's three Democratic challengers — John Laird, Carolyn Plummer and Dave Hope — all last week threw their support behind their party's candidate.

Patton thanked the trio for becoming "a part of the unified effort to elect a Democrat who intends to carry on in the tradition of Sam and Fred Farr."

Even though Cieslikowski's backing eluded McPherson, the Republican challenger pointed to the endorsements of Capitola City Councilmen Jerry Clarke and Mick Routh — both Laird supporters in the primary — as just two examples of Democrats crossing over to the GOP camp.

In the Aug. 31 primary, McPherson collected 16,168 votes to Patton's 12,299. They will be joined in the Nov. 2 election by American Independent Jerome McCready and Peace and Freedom candidate Susanne Espinoza. The Assembly seat became vacant when Sam Farr was elected to the House of Representatives.

New CHS teachers bring blend of youth, experience

By SCOTT BREARTON

ERIC BECK, Lauren Cohen and Dwight Johnson recently joined the talented group of certificated staff members at Carmel High School, promising to offer a myriad of new ideas to those who will listen.

"All three are wonderful," said CHS Principal Marie Ishida. "I feel really fortunate to have been able to get the three of them. They really bring a blend of youth and experience."

Beck, 24, has landed his first professional teaching job with the Carmel Unified School District. He teaches four classes in all — two sections each of U.S. and world history.

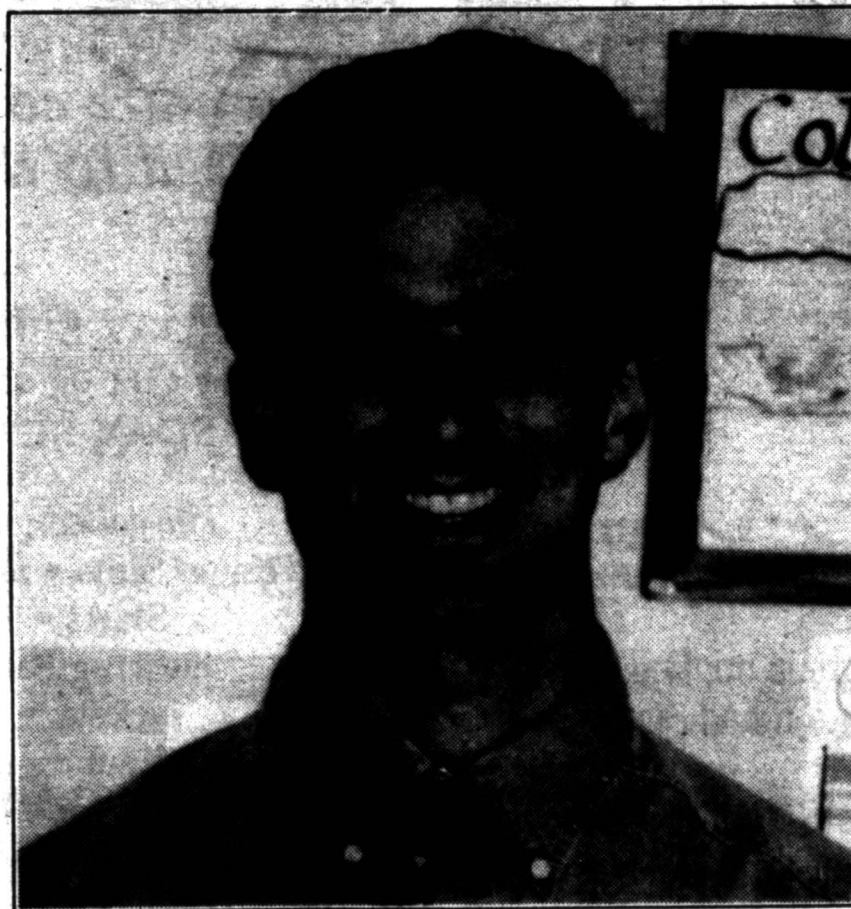

A Pacific Grove resident, Beck is a graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson School, Tufts University in Boston and Stanford University. He has a bachelor's degree in history from the former and a master's in education from the latter.

Beck's youth can be witnessed in his energy level, which he uses to his advantage in the new portable classroom he occupies.

"I think I can connect with the students here, because I was a teen-ager not too long ago," the Monterey Peninsula native commented.

Finding the time

Beck said his biggest concern is finding the time to implement all of his ideas. He is essentially creating his own curriculum and lesson plans. Scorning rote memorization and other traditional means of teaching history, Beck uses different media and lets his students learn by playing the roles of key historical figures.

While one would be hard-pressed to find a weakness in his method, Beck acknowledged that following up on students who are struggling poses a problem for him.

"It's still early (in the school year), but I can see that some are falling through the cracks," said Beck. "I want all my students to be successful and I haven't seen any yet that can't be."

Cohen, 32, was hired in June as Carmel High's newest counselor. She is a UCLA graduate with a bachelor's degree in sociology, a master's in counseling and two teaching credentials.

Cohen worked for the Los Angeles Unified School District for the last seven years. She was a counselor at Hollywood High School for the last two years and taught social studies for five years preceding her efforts there.

While visiting a friend who lives in the area, Cohen — now a Pacific Grove resident — said she "fell in love" with the area.

"L.A.'s schools are crumbling and didn't seem to be getting any better," Cohen said, indicating she prefers to be in a smaller, more efficient school district such as Carmel's.

'Different as it can be'

As for counseling in Carmel, Cohen said, "It's as different as it can be. I saw more parents in my first two weeks at CHS than I saw in two years in L.A."

Cohen said she enjoys gardening, hiking and going to the beach in her free time.

Thief hits Carmel shop for $1,500 in checks and wallet of employee

AN UNIDENTIFIED thief stole $1,500 in checks from the Dovecote clothing store, Carmel Police Department reported this week.

The theft occurred between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 18, according to Senior Officer Terry Chandler.

Also stolen, he said, was a wallet belonging to a shop employee. It contained only credit cards which already have been cancelled.

"The suspect went upstairs and into the business office," Chandler said. "There's merchandise on that floor. Their method here is, pretend to be looking at goods, wait until the clerk is busy, then walk into the office. I imagine the person threw the checks away, because they were two-party and hard to cash."

The shop "doesn't know the check-writers," he added, "and will have to absorb the losses in merchandise. There is no way to recover the money. This case points up again the absolute necessity: Businesses must secure valuables so that robbers can't get at them."

In other Carmel police news, Detective Sgt. Warren (Pete) Poitras said a burglar took $9,500 worth of jewelry and other property from a residence near Santa Fe and Second. Entry was gained some time between 9:15 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 20.

RLS to dedicate new building

THE WILLAMETTA K. Day Residence Hall, Robert Louis Stevenson's new $3.5 million building, will be dedicated in a one-hour ceremony beginning at 6 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 24.

The dedication will take place in the Common Room of Day Hall on the Pebble Beach campus.

The coeducational dormitory, which officially was opened to Stevenson students on Sept. 9, is named in memory of Mrs. Willametta K. Day, an ardent supporter of the school and former longtime member of the board of trustees.

Day Hall, which encompasses 22,000 square feet, provides housing for 58 students and four faculty families.

Additional information about Friday's dedication ceremony is available by calling Donna Iglehart at RLS, 626-5310.

Farr, Karas newcomers to Big Sur Advisory Council

By SUSAN BECK

U.S. REP. Sam Farr and Sam Karas, supervisor for Monterey County's 5th District, co-chaired their first Big Sur Multi-Agency Advisory Council meeting, Friday, Sept. 17.

Both Farr and Karas are newcomers to the council replacing former U. S. Rep. Leon Panetta and Karin Strasser Kauffman, former supervisor for the 5th District.

Farr opened the meeting held at the Big Sur Lodge Conference Center by recalling his years spent in Big Sur as a youth. He also pointed out that in 1975 as a supervisor for Monterey County he was involved with the pilot program for the Coastal Act.

"The pilot land use policies for Big Sur were ahead of the state's policies," said Farr. "The Coastal Act led to land use policies that have subsequently been implemented. Land use allows for build-out. But it also needs to be monitored, which is why the Big Sur Multi-Agency was started."

"I want to commend this agency," said Farr. "It is a model for how our state and national governments should operate."

He said he plans to attend as many meetings in Big Sur as possible. While Congress continues until November, he is traveling back to the Monterey Peninsula every weekend.

"I will do so as long as my body stands it," said Farr. "I am looking forward to working with all of you."

Karas has been coming to the Big Sur area for the past 50 years.

"I love the area," said Karas. "I will do anything I can to protect Big Sur. I have great environmental concerns and am willing to meet with anyone who lives here. I am really pleased to be a member of the multi-agency and represent you as the 5th District supervisor."

Business matters

On matters of business, the legal definition of Proposition 70's deed restriction language was the main topic of discussion.

Prop. 70 was established in 1988. It allocated $25 million in public funds for the specific purpose of purchasing private property in Big Sur that can be seen from Highway 1 and can be built on.

Farr started off the discussion by stating that, according to county counsel, the deed restriction language for the proposition may prohibit the use of scenic view property in perpetuity.

"The public's interest in this is preservation of the view," said Farr. "But this doesn't preclude working out a deal with the land owner for some trail easements. It does not allow, however, any agency to put in trails. This is very good news for those interested in encouraging homeowners to transfer land for open space without development."

Karas confirmed Farr's statement, adding county counsel also indicated public access on Prop. 70 lands may open the doors to liability.

Lee Otter, a coastal planner for the California Coastal Commission, challenged both Farr and Karas. After an extensive legal study, he said, it appears Prop. 70's deed restriction language states something different.

"Our position is the language allows for case by case situations," said Otter. "What's appropriate and what can be implemented. We are in the process of creating a coastal trail from Mexico to Oregon. It could be derailed without a link on private property purchased with Prop. 70 funds."

He said the coastal commission's interest is protecting resources with public access.

"We should not tie the hands of future generations," said Otter.

Farr reiterated county counsel's definition is in agreement with the coastal commission's interpretation. It states, he added, if Prop. 70 money is used to buy property, there may be restrictions, meaning the possibility of managed access.

Local clergyman offers arguments for Prop. 174

By SCOTT BREARTON

SEEKING TO end what he called a "virtual monopoly" on public education by the State of California, the Rev. Burkert Cree offered numerous arguments in support of the controversial Parental Choice in Education Amendment during a Sept. 17 lecture.

"What this thing moves on - from a philosophical point of view - is to empower parents to make the decision," Cree said.

Cree, a Congregational clergyman and Carmel resident, has been a vocal supporter of the Proposition 174 - the school choice initiative - since it was first introduced. He spoke at a meeting of the Carmel Republican Women Federated held last Friday in Pebble Beach.

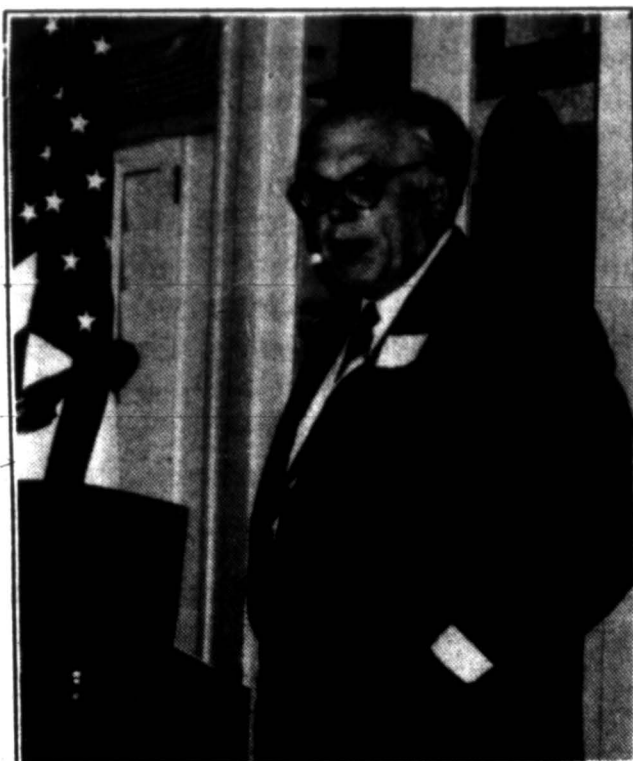

"This initiative does just what we want it to do," Cree said. "It allows those who like public schools to stay right there. It allows those that have doubts, questions or problems to clear out."

Under the proposed legislation, parents would receive a $2,600 voucher or "scholarship," as Cree calls it, for each school-aged child. Parents would be able to use the voucher to send their child to the school of their choice - whether public or private.

"This is an attempt to bring into play the choice of the buyer - the parent - to cause market forces that would normally work to go to work again. It is an attempt to get the marketplace to perform again in an area where there is a near monopoly."

According to Cree, not all private school administrators support the legislation, fearing it would impose new standards and excessive government regulations on their schools.

Cree cited Robert Louis Stevenson school as one such private school: "They would not necessarily have to opt in," he said. "They would not have to become a scholarship-redeeming school. So, there's freedom of choice on the part of the school to go in or out."

And according to Cree, the initiative is written so that if the state wanted to impose new rules governing private schools, it would require a three-fourths vote of the state legislature, and a fifty percent vote at the local level.

Playful jabs

Taking advantage of his Republican audience, Cree took a few playful jabs at the Clinton administration.

He cited the National Education Association (NEA), which he characterized as the largest lobbying organization in the country, with an annual operating budget of $750 million.

"Two of five delegates from the Democratic convention - which nominated Mr. Clinton - were from the NEA," Cree said. "Mr. Clinton had earlier been in favor of parental choice in education. He changed his position after taking the

Voucher initiative trailing in recent poll

THE PARENTAL Choice in Education Amendment is narrowly opposed by California voters, according to a poll published Sept. 16 in the Los Angeles Times.

Proposition 174, which will appear on the Nov. 2 ballot, was opposed by 45 percent of registered voters surveyed by the L.A. Times and favored by 39 percent. Sixteen percent remained undecided.

Eight-hundred ninety-six registered voters were surveyed between Sept. 10 and Sept. 13 to arrive at the numbers. The poll has a margin of error of 4 percentage points.

The measure would allow parents to use tax-funded vouchers to pay for private school tuition. If approved by voters, the legislation would make California the first state to offer tax money for private education.

nomination. No wonder why..."

"When he moved to Washington, Mr. Clinton and his spouse had a decision regarding Chelsea," he commented, noting they ended up enrolling her in "a very fine (private) school" with an annual tuition of $10,000.

According to Cree, the annual cost of educating a child in Washington D.C.'s public school system is the same, about $10,000.

"So, it's not cost that makes the difference," said Cree, who emphasized he is not an opponent of public schools.

"Some (public) schools are good, and some are indeed excellent. There are many fine teachers in public schools."

Opponents of the measure have argued the $2,600 voucher amount is insufficient to cover tuition at most California private schools. But Cree disagreed: "The (voucher amount) is sufficient to pay nine out of 10 private school tuitions in California."

In San Francisco, 28 percent of public school teachers have their children enrolled in private schools, according to Cree. In Los Angeles, he said the rate is even higher.

He said private schools conducting business in a free marketplace could operate for about one-half the amount now spent by public schools. Cree said $2,600 would cover most expenses.

Interestingly, he said Proposition 174 is "not designed for Carmel and Monterey." Cree indicated the initiative would most benefit inner-city parents whose public schools are in far worse shape than those on the Monterey Peninsula.

'They want out'

"There's no question where the poor folks in Oakland and South Los Angeles stand on this," Cree declared. "They are not undecided in the ghetto. They want out."

And according to Cree, low-cost private schools are cropping up in the inner-cities, educating those students who might have fallen through the cracks of California's public schools.

"There are some private schools that exist just for troubled students," he said. "And they have a wonderful success rate."

He cited a private school in South Central Los Angeles which only admits students who can prove their affiliation with a gang. According to Cree, 98 percent wind up graduating.

There seemed to be some question about whether public or private schools are responsible for educating troublesome students. Cree said that while private schools could not discriminate, they could be "selective" on the basis of academic requirements.

CUSD will seek restitution from families of CHS students

By SCOTT BREARTON

IN THE wake of admissions by three former students indicating their involvement in the June 13 arson fire at Carmel High School, administrators say efforts to seek restitution from their families are underway.

"That would probably be forthcoming," said Carmel Unified School District Superintendent Vance Baldwin. "I don't have any information about what our insurance company is doing on that. That's something they would handle."

The trio admitted their involvement in the crime during a juvenile hearing held Sept. 8 in Monterey County Superior Court.

They were arrested July 20 following an alleged two-week crime spree that included auto theft, vandalism and arson.

One of the 17-year-old boys admitted he started the fire. In a plea bargain, the charge was reduced from malicious arson to recklessly causing the blaze. He also entered a guilty plea for auto theft.

While the other two teens did not confess to arson, they were legally responsible because they admitted to burglary of the school, according to Assistant District Attorney Cary Meyer.

The trio waived its right to a jury trial.

All three youths will be sentenced at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 20, before Superior Court Judge John Anton in Monterey.

Latest estimate

Baldwin told the Carmel Pine Cone Sept. 21 that the latest estimate puts the cost of rebuilding the damaged science wing at $750,000. He said the figure includes replacement of equipment and other miscellaneous expenses.

"That's all costs associated with the fire, not just replacement of the building," Baldwin said, noting the district's insurance carrier will pick up the tab, except for $50,000.

Baldwin said he anticipates the bids for reconstruction of the science wing will be awarded at the Oct. 21 board meeting.

"The plan is to give the contractor 90 days to complete the project," Baldwin said, noting the science wing should be ready for classes by Feb. 1.

When asked if anyone had come forward to claim the district's $2,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the blaze, Baldwin said, "We've had some inquiries, but nothing at this point that's reportable."

Clergyman says school choice initiative will end state 'monopoly' on education

But with the passage of Prop. 174, according to Cree, public schools burdened with incorrigible students would be able to "toss them out, no questions asked."

"So, the public schools can no longer say to us, 'we're burdened with certain rules and regulations. We've got to keep these kids.'"

But if public schools can't educate unruly or violent students and private schools won't admit them, how and where will they be taught?

That question remained largely unanswered by Cree.

"It's an unfair burden on public schools to take students that they don't know how to handle. And some private schools may say, no, we don't want you here."

Another question arose: How will private schools be able to accommodate the surge in enrollment if the legislation passes?

Cree said the "invisible hand" (a concept introduced by economist Adam Smith in 1776) will regulate the free market system.

"It will find a way to take care of the needs of parents and children," he said.

Under Prop. 174, Cree said the educational focus would shift from having credentialed teachers to having means of measuring student performance through standardized testing.

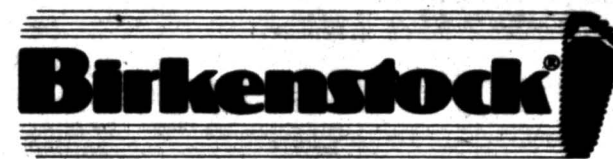

"This approach puts emphasis on what comes out."

8 students from RLS, CHS earn Merit Scholarship recognition

EIGHT SENIORS from Robert Louis Stevenson and Carmel high schools have been named semifinalists in the 1994 National Merit Scholarship Competition, officials announced Sept. 15.

Five semifinalists from RLS include Rittwik Chatterjee, David Dostal, Elizabeth English, Bruce Rohrbough and Max Turner.

CHS semifinalists include Frank Allard, James Genone and Danielle Wall.

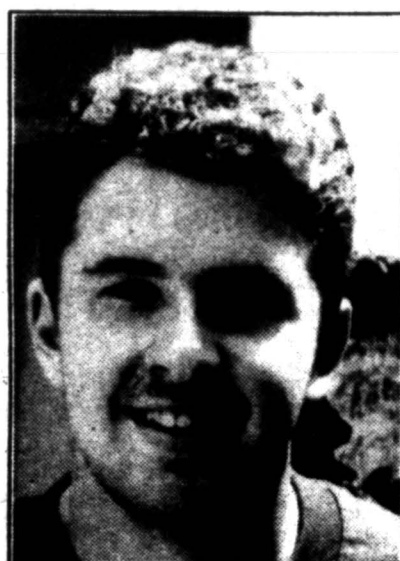

These students will compete for more than 6,500 Merit Scholarships - worth over $25 million - to be awarded next spring. The pool of 15,000 nationwide semifinalists represents about half of 1 percent of each state's high school graduating class.

Approximately one million juniors in more than 19,000 U.S. high schools entered the 1994 Merit Program by taking the 1992 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), which served as an initial screen of entrants.

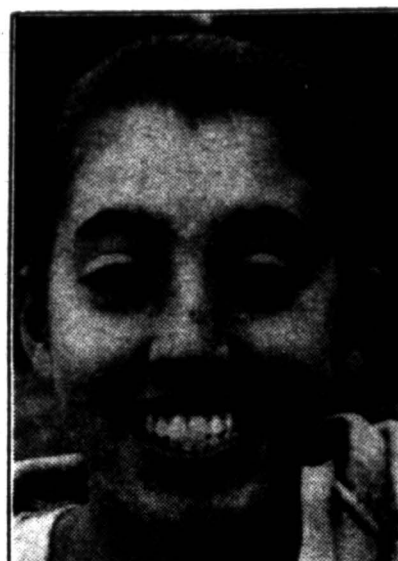

To qualify as finalists, these students must complete a detailed scholarship application outlining their educational interests and goals, and show participation and leadership in school and community activities.

They must also have outstanding academic records and be endorsed by their high school principals. Additionally, they must submit SAT scores that confirm their earlier PSAT/NMSQT performance. About 90 percent of semifinalists are expected to become finalists, and all Merit Scholars will be chosen from this group.

Johnson, 55, is Carmel High's new industrial technology instructor, teaching auto shop, metal working and jewelry-making.

"I've been very pleased with the school, the administration and the students," he said.

Johnson has been teaching for 34 years. Most recently, he worked for Mariposa County High School near Yosemite National Park, where he taught industrial arts for the last 27 years. He spent the first seven years of his career in Los Angeles.

"I've always enjoyed working with my hands - making and repairing things," Johnson said.

Describing the CHS shop as "somewhat archaic," Johnson said he wants to do the best he can with the available equipment, with the hope of upgrading machinery some time in the future.

"The equipment in here is similar to what was used 100 years ago," Johnson said, noting industry is becoming more and more computer-oriented.

Johnson, who now lives in Monterey with his wife, Joan, said he was drawn to this area because of its scenic beauty and ideal climate. Additionally, he said he welcomes the opportunity to live closer to his two grown daughters and grandchildren.

"We were tourists," Johnson said. "Now we're residents. We've been extremely fortunate to live near

Odello East open space purchase 'not a done deal'

vide its property and plans to build 90 homes, including 76 single-family homes on one-half acre lots and 14 low-income units.

"It's a historical agricultural property," said Brian Steen, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust. "It's become a landmark in our Carmel area."

The land is indeed historically significant. The Spanish began cultivating it as early as the 1770s, and by 1835, the Mexican government had designated these fields – and 12 miles of coastline to the south – as Rancho San José y Sur Chiquito.

The Odello family has grown artichokes on the 134-acre property since 1924. While the Odellos have been working to obtain development approval, they prefer to preserve the land they love as open space, and have been willing to explore the possibility of an open space purchase with the help of the Big Sur Land Trust.

"The Odello family wanted an opportunity to work out an agreement that would benefit everyone," said Bruna Odello, on behalf of her family. "The Big Sur Land Trust provided that opportunity."

Concerned stewards

As concerned stewards, the Odellos wish to see their property preserved, as is, for future generations to enjoy.

This was evidenced in 1974, when the Odello family agreed to sell the fields west of Highway 1 to the California Department of Parks and Recreation, ensuring that it would never be subdivided or developed. The state has since leased the property back to the Odellos for agricultural purposes.

Half the battle to save this important parcel had been won, thanks to a tremendous community effort. "That's our goal for the east side," said Steen.

So, with the help of funds collected from local conservation lenders, the land trust – which recently celebrated its 15-year anniversary – has loaned $1.35 million to the Odello family to obtain a purchase option on their property. The negotiated agreement will delay construction at the site.

"Building 90 homes will make a dramatic change in the view that Highway 1 travelers will see," commented Steen.

The option agreement depends on both private and public funds and specifies a purchase price of $5.6 million, which is in effect until June 1994. This deadline coincides with a statewide bond initiative currently proposed. If approved by voters, the California Parks and Wildlife Initiative (CALPAW '94) would cover the purchase price.

"If the bond act comes through, we'll be in good shape," Steen said, noting the property would have to

THE PINE CONE'S Q & A

Steen reflects on Big Sur Land Trust's goals, challenges

By SUSAN BECK

BRIAN STEEN, a native of Iowa became the executive director for the Big Sur Land Trust in 1979, a year after the trust was established. During an interview with the Carmel Pine Cone, he discussed his background and the trust's goals, achievements, and challenges for the future.

Pine Cone: What qualifications set you apart for the position of executive director for the Big Sur Land Trust?

Steen: I have a degree in forestry and worked for the U. S. Forest Service in California including three years in Big Sur. My responsibilities included forest recreation management, providing public information and fire control. My focus has always been land resource management.

In Big Sur, I became acquainted with coastal properties, geographic landmarks, and I got to know most of the land owners. We had to go to every single property owner to check for fire hazards.

That's the key. This job involves working with land owners on a daily basis, and I had established a rapport and dialogue with them as a result of working for the Forest Service.

Pine Cone: The trust's board of directors includes a broad spectrum of varying backgrounds and philosophies. Is it difficult to come to a consensus on issues?

Steen: I have to work at it because the board has strong expectations. We intentionally welcomed community leaders with different political and environmental perspectives because we are dealing with such a wide array of situations.

Pine Cone: What were your aspirations when you started with the Big Sur Land Trust?

Steen: The commitment and challenge was to work with the community to preserve the Big Sur Coast. It's a huge challenge. As I worked with the trust's board, the community and Monterey County, it became clear the preservation of the view shed was really everyone's top priority. Trying to keep that intact and provide compensation for land owners has been an evolving process.

Pine Cone: Have those early aspirations been achieved?

Steen: I guess I could say those aspirations were culminated in the passing of Proposition 70 in 1988. Prop. 70 provides $25 million from 1988 to 1998 to buy land that is visible from Highway 1 and otherwise could be built on. I think we will be able to work out a deal with all of the property owners who are interested in selling within the next five years.

Pine Cone: Have the land acquisition goals with Proposition 70 funds been met?

Steen: No. We were figuring the $25 million would be utilized early on because there are some large properties that could very easily qualify and receive most of the money.

However, for various reasons, those properties haven't been put into the Prop. 70 process. Instead, there have been about 15 small parcels that we've dealt with. Those land owners still qualify, but they are smaller parcels.

Pine Cone: How many parcels are being look at for possible purchase by the trust?

Steen: Throughout the 70 miles of Big Sur Coast between El Paso Creek and the county line there are roughly 80 parcels that could be considered. But that doesn't mean they are all willing sellers.

Pine Cone: What about the trust's involvement along the Monterey Bay shoreline?

Steen: There will be a California Parks and Wildlife (CALPAW) bond initiative in June 1994 that would bring $34 million to Monterey County. Ten million would be used for the Monterey Bay State Shoreline project. We have already purchased more than 40 parcels in Sand City, Marina and Monterey.

Pine Cone: What are the misconceptions about the Big Sur Land Trust?

Steen: That we are some huge organization that buys up land. Actually, our organization is confusing at a glance. We are a private organization but accomplish land acquisition for public benefit. We are a private, non-profit group with full public charity status. This allows us an array of tax benefits to work with for purchasing land for conservation.

Pine Cone: What about the opposition that claims the trust buys land for preservation only to turn it over to the state or regional park district for public use?

Steen: It's not true all the time. We look at properties where there is a real threat in terms of conservation integrity.

For example, the 1,300-acre Mill Creek property in Palo Colorado Canyon. That property had permits for logging, and we felt there was a threat. We put the money together to buy it. But we knew full well we couldn't properly manage the property as a non-profit organization with three staff members.

It has been used for recreation for a long time. People go there for picnics and to stay overnight. There's a public road that goes right through Mill Creek. It was very clear from the outset that someone else needed to manage it for public use. So, we sold the property to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District expressly for their management capability. The use of the land will be minimal.

On the other hand, there is the remote 1,100-acre Mitteldorf property, which has the largest redwood in Monterey County on it. The property was also set to be used for logging. We bought it, and there is no public access.

We look at each property, determine what the threat is and how the conservation of that property can best be achieved. Then we go about getting the money together to buy the land. That sometimes means a private sale with restrictions. Sometimes it means a public sale. There are a lot of different ways you can preserve land.

Pine Cone: Where did the major source of funds come from when the trust started?

Steen: Private contributions have always been the main source of funding for the land trust. We have 1,156 members and anyone can become a member for $25. We use membership contributions to negotiate larger funds by showing we have community support.

For instance, the Point Lobos Ranch was an $11 million transaction. But we got started by using a $25,000 contribution for initial costs.

Pine Cone: Where are the monies coming from today?

Steen: It's still mainly from contributions, but they're harder to come by. And, we have the Prop. 70 money.

Another interesting thing has happened in the last few years. Many land owners are willing their property to the trust for preservation. Through estate planning, something can be saved for the family while giving the property to the trust.

Pine Cone: What about Odello East? Will you have the money required to make the purchase?

Steen: It's not a done deal. By the time the California Parks and Wildlife bond act passes, we will have the property reappraised. I expect the market value to be about $9 million.

People have been lulled into complacency. The Big Sur Land Trust is so successful. We are not known for our failures. People just think the trust can buy the Odello property. They figure it's a done deal. It isn't. In that regard, it makes it a little bit harder to come up with contributions.

If the bond act doesn't pass, we will be more aggressive in pursuing money for Odello East. I'll be looking toward any and all funding options to make the transaction happen.

Interestingly, there's a bit of irony in the reces-

June 1993 ballot initiative could provide funds for Odello East

be reappraised next June to determine fair market value.

During the option period, the Odellos will continue to own and farm Odello East, and the proposed development project will not go forward.

"We're hoping that the bond issue will come through," the Odellos said. "We have faith that they (BSLT) can do it. This is a key project."

Time is running out

But the purchase option is not guaranteed, nor is its funding source, according to Steen. And time is running out.

"In June of 1994, our option to buy this property expires unless we come up with the funds," said Steen.

"If everything falls through, we will not be able to exercise the (purchase) option on the property. Without the completed transaction, the Odellos will be able to implement that (use) permit and build a total of 90 homes."

Steen said a petition is currently being circulated in an effort to place the bond initiative on the June 1994 ballot. He said the land trust has until Oct. 10, 1993 to collect the 7,500 signatures of Monterey County registered voters necessary. So far, organizers have half that amount, according to Steen.

"With the initiative, $34 million will be available for Monterey County land contributions, which would cover the amount needed for the Odello land purchase," Steen said. "We really want to encourage local residents to sign the initiative."

He said the Big Sur Land Trust is also considering another funding source - a $900,000 grant from the California Transportation Commission.

But if the 1994 bond measure or other funding alternatives fail, the Odellos are prepared to move forward with their development plans.

"At this point, what we want to do is preserve open space," said the Odellos. "But if they fail to raise the money, we have no other choice to go ahead with the projected development."

The Odellos said they have received approval from the Monterey County Board of Supervisors for development and have a tentative plot map showing lot lines and road locations.

89 conditions pending

While 89 conditions for approval are still pending, the Odellos are confident that development of the property will go forward if an agreement with the land trust cannot be reached.

Steen urged conservation supporters who believe in saving the property to contribute to the Land Trust to help facilitate the transaction.

"We always welcome people's contributions and donations in support of buying this property," Steen said. "The Big Sur Land Trust is a fully-established public charity and all donations are tax-deductible."

Golfer's Etiquette - A Few Reminders

By Belle James, Owner - Village Golf Shops

Maybe not in the rule book...but sure a good way to make the game more enjoyable!

RULE: Must rake trap after you hit out. But if you didn't, the next fellow's ball gets stuck in your footprint, and he can't move it. Now... he's going to feel happy about this, and on his next drive might not wait for you to get out of his way... and hits into you. Ah, but you, the "non-raker", are actually two groups ahead. Now you're mad and the group ahead of you has high blood pressure - where's the fun? So... let's be aware of the whole course and of each other. Be thoughtful; rake the trap.

A few more reminders:

- Show up early for your tee-off time. There might be a line at the cashier. (Don't laugh...I'm always late.)
- Let the single player go through - he'll just be on your tail & aggravating you anyway. But don't try to play through or push (hit into next group) when you know there's a wait on the next tee.
- After 10 strokes... pick it up... let's keep going!
- If the group ahead of you is getting out of sight, that's a good clue to let the group behind you play through.
- About divots (those grassy clumps) - replace them in the hole you just made, PLEASE. And if you see a divot next to a dirt spot, a quick fix won't hurt you!

- P.S. Greens keepers...how about port-a-potties at the men's favorite trees? Ladies drink coffee, too!

Steen reflects on land trust's importance

LAND TRUST from page 10
sion that has helped us preserve property like Odello East and Point Lobos Ranch. It's difficult now to come up with development money. With no money to develop, people approach us about buying their property.

Pine Cone: What would happen if there were no Big Sur Land Trust?

Steen: Just reverse some of our transactions. Mill Creek would be logging, Point Lobos would be well into the process of developing a hotel and Odello East would have almost 100 condos on it.

Pine Cone: The trust just celebrated its 15th anniversary. Has the initial vision of the trust changed over the years?

Steen: I'd say it has. Initially, the founders felt they should also be working with historical and cultural projects. But they found out early on that the spectrum was too broad.

Within the first two years, the board decided to focus on land transactions, which were expanded in 1985 to include the Monterey shoreline.

Pine Cone: Are you glad you took the job?
Steen: Yes. I love this job. The learning curve is always very steep. It doesn't level off. I deal with all kinds of people and situations involving land, money and politics.

Pine Cone: Do you plan to stay with the Big Sur Land Trust?

Steen: Yes. It's constantly challenging. Our goal isn't to buy every single property. But there still are some critical properties which the community, public and landowners love and want for preservation.

One way or another, if we can put together a transaction that will make that take place, I want to be a part of it. Fulfilling the role that we already established. I welcome anyone to visit or call. We can't continue without the support from the community."

About the Big Sur Land Trust

SINCE ITS inception, the Big Sur Land Trust (BSLT) has dedicated itself to preserving the Big Sur Coast and Monterey Peninsula as a natural and cultural resource.

The BSLT was founded in 1978 by local residents as a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation that creates a private sector alternative for land preservation, serving as a bridge between private and public sectors.

In all, BSLT has been involved in the preservation of 100 significant parcels encompassing more than 10,500 acres throughout coastal Monterey County. The appraised value of the 67 transactions needed to secure this land exceeds $38 million.

BSLT is supported through contributions and grants from those who share in the commitment to preserve open space throughout Big Sur and the Monterey Peninsula. It is operated by 15 Monterey County residents and has a supporting membership of more than 1,000.

By JAMES GENONE

Parking headaches disappear

FOREVER ETCHED into the dark recesses of my mind is the memory of trekking across miles of barren wasteland, through exploding mine fields, across raging rivers, and between opposing armies so that I could get a ride home from a friend.

Why, you might ask, would a student have to go to all that trouble simply to get a ride? Because last year's Carmel High School parking lot was so full that my friends routinely had to park in the middle of nowhere.

Last year, our parking lot was so small that if you came to school less than about 15 minutes before it started, there was no way you were going to get a parking place within a 10-minute hike from your locker. And, if you arrived much more than about 15 minutes late for school, you'd be even later because, even at a full sprint, you couldn't reach your first period class any quicker.

But fortunately for all of us students, the Associated Student Body took it upon themselves several years ago to solve the parking problem. It began by charging students money to park in the existing lot and, at the same time, developed a plan for a new lot with cooperation from the school district. Finally, the plan has been achieved. When I arrived on campus for the first day of school, I not only had no trouble finding a parking space, I had the choice of at least a dozen.

Plenty of spaces

Even more surprising, when I went out to put some books in my car midway through first period, I realized there were still some empty spaces! Over the summer, contractors tore out an island in the middle of the old parking lot, re-paved some of the asphalt, and re-striped the entire thing, creating dozens of new spaces.

"I'm really pleased with it, and I think that the faculty and students are pleased with it, too" said ASB president Kyle Decker.

"It seems to have solved the problem," commented ASB advisor Chad Lincoln.

"It's been nice for the students because at the moment there seems to be sufficient space," said principal Marie Ishida. "Personally, I would have preferred to spend the money on something else such as classroom supplies, but it was raised in order to build a new lot. I think that it will get more crowded as students begin to finish Driver's Ed."

For the most part, reaction to the new lot has been very positive. "Last year I was always late and I had to park in no-man's land," said senior Sam Melton. "But now there are so many spaces I can be as late as I want without having to worry about hunting for a space."

It's nice to see the ASB was so successful with their plan, and that they were able to keep it going from year to year. It certainly has been nice for me, since I've never had to park anywhere far away.

Hopefully, the ASB will be as successful with their endeavors in the future.

County libraries celebrate Banned Books Week

MONTEREY COUNTY Free Libraries will take part in the national Banned Books Week, Sept. 26 to Oct. 2, Special Projects Librarian Marilyn Kanemura announced Tuesday.

The special period means to focus attention on the importance of preserving First Amendment rights when faced with "continuing threats of censorship," Kanemura noted.

"During the week, our 16 branches and book mobile will join other libraries in celebrating the freedom to read. Many of our branch libraries will feature displays of books which have at some time been banned in schools, communities and states because they were considered dangerous or objectionable by certain individuals or groups."

Example: In 1992, John Steinbeck's Of Mice and Men was challenged as recommended reading in a Modesto high school. "Someone thought the book contained 'offensive and racist' language," Kanemura said.

'Developed a shipwreck mentality'

couple was given a phosphorus torch for light.

Two other couples were with the Faia's at their table.

"We developed a shipwreck mentality," said Faia. "The two other women became really frightened. But Tina and I kept our cool because we had no idea how bad it really was. Our ignorance was bliss, and it helped us keep everyone calm."

Then, the roof of the ballroom started to crack and come apart. "I still didn't think that I would die," said Faia. "I was in a good place, and I also picked a place away from the door because people get trampled when they panic and rush to the exit."

With the roof giving way, everyone was moved down to the tunnels in the basement of the hotel.

"I began to see we weren't going to get off the island the next day," said Faia.

After storm

After the storm, Faia tried to get a room. But he was told nothing would be available because without electricity there would be no way to check the empty rooms to see if they were safe.

Fortunately, one of the couples, Steve and Annette who huddled for safety in the ballroom with the Faia's, offered to let them sleep on the couch in their room.

In an attempt to hear news about Iniki, Faia turned the car radio on. "There was no news," he said. "It was amazing. No newscasters, no antenna. You forget it takes people to transfer information out to everyone."

Faia remembers that all of the water, for about two or three hundred yards out, was red because of the island's red clay dirt.

"It was calm, warm and clear. Just like another vacation day."

Keeping the rental car paid off. Every two hours, he and Steve drove to the airport to check for flights off the island. "The girls were ready," said Faia. "But every time we went to the airport, the airlines brushed us off."

Finally, Sunday morning, they got a flight. Faia had a low numbered ticket and was able to take the first plane out of Kauai, which had flown physicians and health personnel in from Hawaii to help out after the hurricane.

On Monday, the first commercial flights began taking more than 4,000 people off Kauai.

Faia went to work Monday morning, business as usual. However, some things have changed.

Kauai will never be the same. Iniki's destruction has left a permanent mark.

"Things are still in a state of destruction," said Faia. "It will take a long time because all of the materials for construction have to be flown in or brought by boat. Many people are living in lean-tos."

And even though hotels and homes are slowly being reconstructed, and people are still snorkeling among the sea turtles and coral reefs, destructive weeds from all over the world are taking over the island's newly exposed ecosystems, according to Diane Ragone, program coordinator for the Hawaii Plant Conservation Center of the National Tropical Botanical Garden on Kauai's southern shore.

At home, Faia's wife still can't stand to hear the wind blow during the winter. She has had three hurricane experiences — once in the Caribbean, Hurricane Bob and now Iniki.

"We think twice now about where we will take our vacation," said Faia. "People ask me where I'm going, so they won't go there. I seem to elicit hurricane behavior."

Ever wonder why other walking shoes leave your feet hot and sweaty, tired and sore?

Very simple. They're not made like Mephisto.

Many other walking shoes, you see, use synthetic materials, and synthetics retain heat, moisture and odors.

Mephistos, on the other hand, are all-natural. They're made of vegetable dyed full-grain leathers, pure latex, cork and rubber. Only leather "breathes" to assure maximum foot comfort. Combined with other natural materials, you'll feel like you're walking on feathers.

And other walking shoes certainly aren't manufactured like Mephisto, by hand, one at a time, in the matchless European tradition.

It's no wonder Mephisto is the most popular walking shoe on earth. It's the natural selection.

Anatomy of an auxiliary

AN ELDERLY woman languishes in her bed at a nursing home. The room reeks of urine. She has bed sores from not being turned. She hasn't had a visitor in months and her only son is embezzling money from her estate...

This ugly scene isn't as rare as you might like to think. At Saturday's Ombudsman meeting to launch a new auxiliary, held at the historic Victorian home of Steve and Dolores Gunia in Monterey, it was made clear that seniors in long-term care facilities desperately need the help of Ombudsman, a non-profit agency that investigates elder abuse in long term care facilities.

"I've seen things that shouldn't have happened," said Linda Gin, treasurer of Ombudsman. "If you walk into a facility and there's an overpowering odor, it shouldn't be."

Such violations are investigated by the agency that serves Monterey County.

Before a crackling fire, surrounded by mariners' antiques and gold bound books, executive director Vicki Bamman addressed approximately 30 volunteers and potential volunteers. She said media attention to child abuse in recent years has set the stage for public awareness of the equally prevalent problem of elder abuse - Ombudsman's main focus.

"We go into a facility and gain trust and let people know their complaints will be kept secret, whether it's that the coffee isn't hot to physical abuse."

She said financial abuse by family members is the most widespread problem for these seniors and is a growing problem in Monterey County. These complaints and others are registered by anonymous calls, family members and even staff members who are afraid to complain to their supervisors at negligent facilities.

"That's the unpleasant side," she said. "The good side is that we really make a difference." With community education, including speeches to churches and groups, Ombudsman continues to march forward with the rights of seniors at the helm. And that is why a fund-raising auxiliary is so important.

Bamman has lots of ideas for the auxiliary: helping with a newsletter, a fund-raising signature event that invites people to send flowers on Mother's Day to mothers in long term care facilities, singers to perform in facilities, etc.

While the private agency does receive some federal support and monies from both local United Ways, there is a need for meeting rooms. But they cannot avail themselves of, for instance, the panoramic seventh floor at Park Lane.

"That would be a sticky wicket," Bamman said. "A conflict of interest."

Thus far, their offices are in Seaside at social services and the Quadrangle in Salinas.

After guests had chosen their teacup from Dolores' fantastic collection, they were served by Dolores and assembled to hear Edie Karas, a founding member of the Natividad Medical Center's auxiliary, talk about the anatomy of an auxiliary. She made such good points, I told her she should become a circuit speaker.

"We started out very small," she said. "A nucleus of no more than a dozen people, but we did a lot of fund-raising."

Having lived in the area all her life, Karas said she had lots of friends. And she used them all to help. "You call in your chips," she said.

Their first meeting was in an adobe. "People think you need a big structure but that's not necessary," she said. In those days, all she had was a simple file box of names. And she and Morley Brown, who opened her home to the first low-overhead auxiliary fund-raising events, spent many a happy hour at Morley's home addressing envelopes.

"That was my favorite thing to do," she said. "We always had a good time."

Their first fund-raiser was not too successful. They rented the Whaling Station for $100 and made $0. "But it got us going."

Then there was a wine-tasting and Pat Sandstrum helped secure Stonepine for an event.

HOSTESS DOLORES Gunia and Edie Karas, sipping tea from Dolores' rare collection, helped launch the new Ombudsman auxiliary on Saturday.

JETUAN FISHER and Teresa Sullivan were lost in conversation during the brunch.

ABOUT 30 interested guests, volunteers and staff discussed long term care over brunch on the sunlit deck at the Gunias.

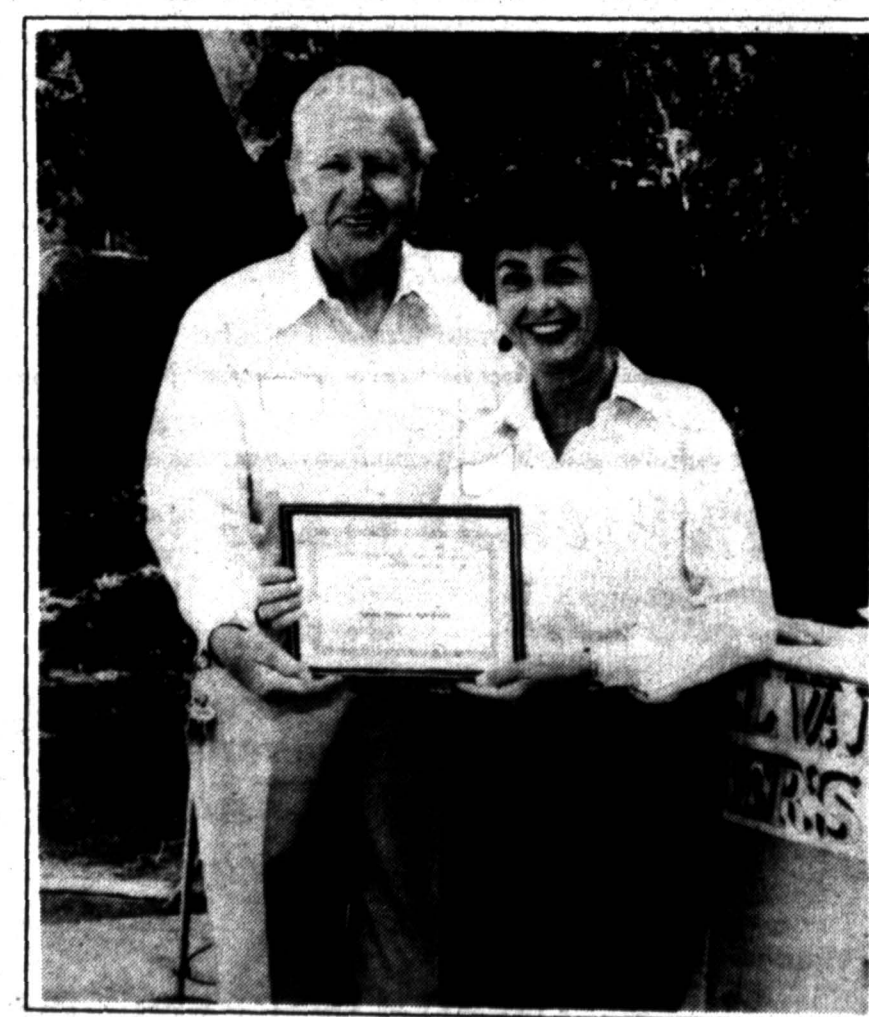

NOVELLA NICHOLSON, a speaker at the meeting, joined board president Malcolm Jones and executive director Vicki Bamman.

DALE WILLIAMS brought his Peruvian paso, Quimerico, to the CVPOA picnic in Carmel Valley Village.

And then, I can tell you because I was there, they gave the most unorthodox party I can imagine for the Alliance on Aging. It was at Quail Lodge, it was called Bravo Brazil, and it was scandalous! There were Brazilian dancers with nary a stitch on but thongs and tassels. And as they swished their feathers in the faces of guests, juniors and seniors took to the dance floor like lemmings.

Actually, that was the night I first met Steve Gunia and made a swipe about his ruffled Latin shirt. If my mind serves, Dolores had feathers in her hair too.

SPOTLIGHT from page 16

Anyway, they had to top this successful event with the magnificent designer's showcase at Cheviot Hill. According to Karas, the event roped in 40 volunteers and $50,000.

This is the anatomy of an auxiliary. You start by massaging all your contacts; borrow a little; make a little; and save some seed money. Get as many freebies as you can, develop a signature event, and you're off...

Edie said she got her event-planning spirit from Sam, whose credits include the Monterey Jazz Festival.

Novella Nicholson, founding Alliance auxiliary member, said, "There would have been no auxiliary without Edie who is idea and work oriented."

Board members, including Patty Skefish and Cliff Hylton; Ombudsman officers and staff, including Malcolm Jones, president; and volunteers stepped onto the Gunia's sunny deck and ate brunch, provided by board members.

There, Bamman expressed her high hopes that the community will rally to join the fledgling auxiliary (as yet, there is no president) that will support the worthy Ombudsman. Not only does this agency drop in unannounced to nursing homes, but to residential homes that provide long term care.

"They look like everybody's home, but probably not like Dolores'," Bamman said.

True. The Gunia's home, decorated by interior designer Dolores and the site of the annual Ombudsman Christmas party, is enchanting enough to command tours. But I did hear her murmur something like, "Maybe I'll turn this into a long-term care home."

Not yet, Dolores. It's too perfect a party home!

P.S. To volunteer, call Bamman at 899-4066.

DMV eases vehicle registration penalties

According to the Department of Motor Vehicles, California vehicle owners who are late renewing their vehicle registrations will find they face a lighter penalty structure for those whose renewal is paid no later than 30 days after the due date. But vehicle owners who renew their registrations more than 30 days after the due date will end up paying a much higher penalty fee.

New legislation made effective August 2 institutes a graduated penalty for vehicle owners during the first days after their vehicle's registration due date. If registration is renewed 1-10 days late, the penalty will be 10 percent of the fees due; if renewed 11-30 days late, the penalty will be 20 percent.

Anyone renewing their vehicle registration beyond the 30-day period, however, will face a stiffer 60 percent penalty. Previously, vehicle owners paid a 40 percent penalty if they were one day to one year late.

OWNERS NINA Melillo and Gino Abraham (at left) are joined by Abraham's mother, Toni Brucia, at Monday's opening reception introducing the Monterey Peninsula's second Allegro Pizzeria. The new Allegro, which officially opened for business on Wednesday, is located in The Barnyard in Carmel.

Allegro Pizzeria opens in Carmel

THERE MAY be a brand new restaurant in Carmel, but, for pizza fans, it has a familiar ring to it.

Allegro Gourmet Pizzeria, which has developed a loyal following at its location in Pacific Grove for the past five years, has, at last, found a home in Carmel.

"We've been looking for a Carmel location for two years," said Carmel native Gino Abraham, co-owner of Allegro with his wife, Nina Melillo. "And this is what we really wanted — it's a good location."

The area's second Allegro is situated at 3770 The Barnyard, tucked under Sherlock Holmes Pub Restaurant, and in the former location of Linda's Cookie Basket. It officially opened for business on Wednesday (Sept. 22), but was informally introduced at a private reception on Monday evening (Sept. 20).

While the two Allegro restaurants will have the same menus, Abraham said the Carmel-based pizzeria will offer some different twists. The new Allegro will be open from 10 to 11 a.m. for "Spuntino" (snack in Italian), where customers will be able to purchase pizzas with a brunch touch, Abraham said. One example, the owner said, is a cream cheese and scrambled egg pizza.

In addition, coffee and cappuccino will be available.

Another new wrinkle at the Carmel restaurant is the introduction of a deli section, where customers will be able to purchase packaged pasta dishes and sauces.

"It will be a real convenience," Abraham noted. "They will all be under $4, and will be quick, pick-it-up items that will be popular for both lunch and dinner."

The Carmel Allegro will have seating for 58 and will be open six days a week, closing on Tuesday. In addition to the morning "Spuntino" hour, Allegro will be open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. for lunch, and 5 to 9 p.m. for dinner.

During weekends, the restaurant's dinner hours will be extended to 10 p.m.

Although Abraham said he is exploring the idea of instituting a delivery service in the future, there are no immediate plans for delivery at either the Pacific Grove or Carmel restaurants.

The phone number for the new Allegro is 626-5454.

Happy tails 'Billy the Kid' and 'Sally'

WE HAVE two sweet kitty-cats who need homes. Billy is too good to be true. He's just over one year old, neutered—a big indoor kitty with coloring like "Morris." He loves to be held, is gentle, sweet and really perfect.

Sally is an adorable tabby cat, spayed, one and one-half years, loving and very playful and, of course, she is an indoor kitty.

Cats are wonderful companions. They are quiet, clean, undemanding friends. Billy and Sally are waiting for your call, so please come and see them. Our number is 647-2350.

Although she isn't ready to go to a new home, I want to acquaint you with Chloe. She's a beautiful small shepherd, just 28 pounds, not quiet one year old.

Chloe was abandoned at Fort Ord. She was found tied outside her home with another doggy and they had no food or water. Both dogs were skin and bones and they wouldn't have lasted much longer without nourishment or shelter.

Chloe has obviously been terribly abused and in the few days since her rescue, we've been trying, slowly, to gain her trust. She eats as if each meal is her last and she drinks a great deal of water.

It will take time for Chloe to settle in and gain strength and confidence before we can even think of placing her. But now that you have been properly introduced, we'll keep you up to date with progress reports until she's A-OK and ready to move on.

Pet therapy

A few years ago I was fortunate to meet a terrific lady named Sharon Hartley. Sharon is a licensed therapist who works in the Sacramento area, and I placed one of our pet foundation doggies with her—a magnificent akita named Kate.

Sharon stays in touch with me, and last week, I received a letter from her, a portion of which I want to share:

"First, I want to say that Kate is doing great and we give so much pleasure to each other. She goes to work with me every day and she adds joy to all my patient's lives. I never know what the reception will be from others when she goes out to the waiting room to greet everyone. So far, she has added a warm and friendly greeting, and brings a smile to everyone's face. Sometimes it feels that folks come in to see her and not me. Who would have ever thought that having a pet in my office would bring so much joy to so many sad people? Again, thank you so much for coming into my life and giving me my very special friend. I can't imagine my life without her."

You said it all, Sharon. There's nothing to add—except I'm so very grateful that Kate is your Best Friend.

See you next week!

Hernandez steps down as museum director; consultant role told

JO FARB Hernandez, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's director, will not renew her contract with the facility when that pact expires on Nov. 30.

The unanticipated development was announced by Hernandez late last week via a media release from the museum.

"In order to ease the transition to the succeeding administration," the release said, "Ms. Hernandez will continue to serve the museum as a consultant for a two-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1994."

Hernandez said: "My new role as consultant will give me increased time and flexibility to pursue other professional projects in addition to those which I will undertake for (the museum). I feel that I have accomplished many of the objectives I set out to achieve."

She has served as museum director since 1985. For eight years prior, she was director of Triton Museum of Art in Santa Clara.

"During Jo's term," said William Hyland, immediate past president of the museum board, "(the museum) reached a high standard of professionalism, substantially increased the size and quality of the facilities on Pacific St., added numerous and significant works of art to its collections, and developed and opened the exceptional Jane and Justin Dart Wing at La Mirada."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Retirement programs known as 401(k)s have been adopted widely since companies and employees learned their advantages. In the early 1980s, only 3 percent of 600 large U.S. companies offered 401(k) plans. Now, more than 85 percent do. Employees can earmark part of their pay regularly, tax deferred, to be invested in individual 401(k) accounts. An employee leaving a firm can transfer an account to a new job or an IRA.

Marie Colasuro was 19 when her family emigrated from Italy to New York. Schooled in art techniques, she set out to do needlework, and for 65 years her beading and embroidery were in demand for dresses of some of the nation's most famous women. At age 105, she recalled examples: Gowns she embroidered for two First Ladies - Eleanor Roosevelt and Florence Harding - are on display at the Smithsonian Institution. And watching TV one night, she recognized her beadwork on a skirt worn by Ginger Rogers in a dance scene with Fred Astaire. Cataracts haven't idled her skilled hands. Now she crochets dolls for charity fundraisers.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address, telephone number and signature, and preferably be typed and double spaced. Anonymous letters, or those with no phone numbers will not be accepted.

Another freeway alternative Dear Editor:

The proposed plan to widen Highway One as an alternative to a Hatton Canyon Freeway is a bad idea for several major reasons.

During the construction period (two to three years), Route One would become a drivers nightmare. Traffic seeking alternative routes are left with one choice, Carmel-by-the-Sea. Streets such as Carpenter and Junipero will become traffic jams. Ultimately, the finished six-lane highway would require concrete sound barriers 10- to 20-feet high reducing the entire area into a monumental eye sore.

It seems to me we're left with two options: accept Highway One as a problem that doesn't need fixing and leave it as is, or accept the fact there is a problem that requires a reasonable solution that eliminates a gigantic freeway.

A vastly simpler and less expensive solution would be to create a two-lane, northbound only road through Hatton Canyon thus allowing existing Highway One to become a two-lane, southbound only road.

Hopefully this idea will get some serious consideration.

Window display restriction?

Dear Editor:

I attended the last Carmel City Council meeting (Sept. 14), and it appears that the commercial zoning ordinance put to a vote in June is being interpreted to permit apparel stores in the Central Commercial and Service Commercial districts to sell up to 10 percent of their merchandise consisting of geographical place-name T-shirts.

In other words, potentially there could be a T-shirt outlet in every apparel store in the two central commercial districts, the heart of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Well, the voters did pass Measure H, albeit by 10 votes. Presumably, they knew what they were voting for. So be it.

Nevertheless, what I think I also heard from the majority of the city council was that they bemoan the rampant display of T-shirts in store windows. This may be the common ground, the defining issue of this recent controversy that has made us all be at war with each other.

I believe I can say that almost everyone — residents and visitors alike — want Carmel to look like a "village", and feel that overbearing T-shirt displays in windows destroy the image, even if the image is a fantasy or myth.

If the city council is not willing to limit the number of T-shirt outlets in the village, are they at least willing to limit the display of such T-shirts in storefront windows in order to respect the intent of the General Plan to preserve the "village" character we all cherish?

It is hoped that the city council might put some thought into adding a window display restriction in the commercial zoning ordinance to prohibit the display of such items as geographical place name T-shirts, coffee cups, ash trays, etc. in the windows of stores which are not T-shirt shops or souvenir shops, but are only permitted to sell such items as an ancillary use.

Such a restriction would also have the virtue of truthfully reflecting that the store is not a souvenir or T-shirt shop, but is rather an apparel store, bakery or restaurant.

Burden of accusations

Dear Editor:

Any false accusation is successful in maligning its intended victims because the burden of disproving the accusations falls on the shoulders of the accused.

By their very existence, false charges acquire some semblance of credence, for they unfairly place the victim in the role of defending himself or herself.

Recently, a friend of mine, Bill Uretsky, an exemplary sergeant on the Carmel Police force for over a decade, was accused of sexual harassment, along with two other officers. I have known Sgt. Uretsky and his family for several years, and I know that such charges are preposterous.

I strongly advocate women's rights and detest sexual harassment in any form, yet I feel that we have created a climate in this country wherein the pendulum has swung too far in opposition to the once lackadaisical attitude we had toward what I term "verbal rape."

Once women had to tolerate this disgusting form of harassment with-

Let's look at where we're headed

TWENTY-FOUR (24) more shop windows in Carmel will be able to display souvenir place-name T-shirts as a result of a vote at the city council's Sept. 14 meeting.

The 3-2 vote (Barbara Brooks and Barbara Livingston dissenting) will allow the existing 24 apparel stores in the Service Commercial zone to stock T-shirts as 10 percent of their inventory.

The council majority ignored the unanimous 7-0 recommendation of the Carmel Planning Commission that "place-name apparel" (T-shirts) be restricted to the Central Commercial land use zone. This action would have preserved the Service Commercial zone as a buffer between the intense Central Commercial zone and the Residential Commercial zone.

It should be noted that the majority of the planning commission was selected by the mayor and ratified by the city council.

This vote was perplexing in that earlier at the same meeting, in considering an appeal by a T-shirt shop on Ocean Avenue, Mayor Ken White argued eloquently against the display of T-shirts in store windows. He said it gave tourists a poor impression of our commercial district.

Commercial property owners and their representative argued that Ordinance 92-23 (Measure H) grants them the right to have T-shirts in the Service Commercial zone. Planning Director Brian Roseth stated that Ordinance 92-23 did not necessarily grant this privilege. Its language is so vague, he said, as to require interpretation by the city council. The mayor and Councilmen Bob Fisher and Phil Coniglio chose not to agree with the planning director.

Weren't the spokesmen for Measure H misleading the voters when they claimed time after time that Ordinance 92-23 would result in "no more" T-shirts in Carmel? They never mentioned

Does Caltrans understand message?

CLARIFICATION OF the Hatton Canyon Freeway status is needed.

One must first recall the basis of the controversy: Caltrans' refusal to negotiate any significant engineering changes in its overblown and destructive plan, a plan including the following consequences:

- a 500-foot wide, 700-foot deep excavation at Carpenter Street with two overpasses, this cut reaching to within 50 feet of Via Mar Monte;
- 700 feet of sound walls behind High Meadow condominiums;
- a 120-foot deep cut, 100 feet behind Edgefield Place homes, bordered by 1,000 feet of sound walls;
- complete filling of the entire bottom of Hatton Canyon to a depth of 70 feet at its center;
- a 300-foot wide cut and fill reaching within 100 feet of the western center of Carmel Knolls;
- a 600-foot wide, 1,200-foot long massive concrete interchange at Carmel Valley Road, built on top of a

SKIP LLOYD

30-foot high hill of fill;
• a 100-foot wide, up to 25-foot high earth hill from behind the Barnyard to Oliver Road with the freeway on top, towering above the rooftops of Mission Fields, only 150 feet away, bordered by 1,750 feet of sound walls along all of the east side of Mission Fields;

• the utter destruction of more than 13 acres of valuable wetlands;

• the tearing up of over 10,000 trees, many of which are stately, mature, indigenous stock of pine and oak;

• introduction of extreme noise into Hatton Canyon, which is beyond mitigation; and, not least,

• desecration of our quality of life and irreparable injury to the spirit of this community.

This plan, concerning which Caltrans has adamantly refused to negotiate during the past five years, has polarized our community into two camps: (1) those who favor the plan because it is the only one Caltrans claims it will sanction, and (2) those who oppose it, believing that, if they fight, vigorously and tenaciously, ultimately Caltrans can be forced to take a balanced approach.

Recently, movement away from the Caltrans plan has occurred at the Transportation Agency of Monterey County (TAMC), where an alternative has been demanded.

Conflict with data

This has led to one alternative plan, elements of which will need to be modified in the design process in order to be palatable to this community. This particular alternative was created because Caltrans would not permit the TAMC engineering committee to use data, which is correct, but which conflicts with data Caltrans has used to justify its freeway plan.

In other words, Caltrans threatened to leave the negotiating table unless it got its way, the same attitude which caused the original polarization of our community.

Caltrans permitted even the above alternative out of the TAMC committee only because it was confident that the California Transportation Commission (CTC) would defeat any move away from the freeway plan. Contrary to Caltrans' expectations, CTC, on Sept. 8, also voted in favor of an alternative and to "dump" the freeway plan. CTC has ordered Caltrans to come back with a safe and "cost effective" alternative in November 1993.

Fight will continue

Now the challenge is for Monterey County and Caltrans to design an acceptable alternative in the next two months. Hatton Canyon Coalition's engineers have demonstrated this is possible, if Caltrans does not again manipulate the process and scuttle the resolution of this controversy, in hopes of reviving its freeway plan. If an acceptable alternative is not presented to CTC in November, Caltrans will push its freeway again and the fight will continue.

Aspects of Caltrans' manipulation in order to rationalize its freeway plan, have surfaced in the course of the lawsuit brought by Carmel, the Sierra Club, the Monterey Peninsula Park District and the Hatton Canyon Coalition over the FEIS/EIR prepared by Caltrans for its coveted freeway.

This action is scheduled for trial in early January 1994. If Caltrans loses this suit, which is considered very possible, the full truth concerning Caltrans' manipulation of the process, the nature of solutions to our traffic problems, and the full extent of the environmental degradation involved in Caltrans' plan, will be revealed as a matter of law.

Then, even if the present process fails to achieve an acceptable alternative, Caltrans will be forced to deal fairly with our community and address this problem openly and properly.

Let's hope Caltrans' District V has understood the message from Monterey County and the state, so the last resort of a court judgment is not required to bring this controversy to a close.

Francis P. ("Skip") Lloyd, a Monterey attorney, has been a Carmel resident for more than 50 years. He is currently chairman of Hatton Canyon Coalition, Inc.

their belief that the ordinance would allow 24 Service Commercial apparel shops to add T-shirts.

There is probably no other element which downgrades and cheapens a business community more quickly than the proliferation of place-name T-shirts. Lovely resort communities up and down our coast are plagued with these souvenir shops — an indication that quality business has moved elsewhere.

At the Sept. 14 meeting, Councilwoman Livingston read portions of an urgency ordinance enacted by the City of Sausalito to control the increasing onslaught of souvenir shops, calling them "...economically, culturally and socially unhealthy..." This ordinance is enthusiastically supported by both Sausalito's residents and its business community.

Isn't it astonishing that our lovely village, always thought of as a leader in holding the line against over-commercialization, seems to be moving in the opposite direction?

The Carmel Residents Association board of directors authored this piece.

out legal recourse, but now we have become so preoccupied with sexual harassment that any innocent gesture, glance or comment can be construed to be sexually offensive.

If we allow accusers to register such charges so lightly, I suggest we strengthen the libel and slander laws so that those who are falsely accused can file counter-suits against the accusers and their attorneys. In this manner, the real victims in such cases can clear their names and can profit monetarily — which seems to be the primary business of American jurisprudence lately.

An innocent life

Dear Editor:

The fire deliberately set at the Carmel High School was a disaster financially, but the building will be replaced. However, it also took an innocent life.

When I walked through the school grounds after the episode, I saw the body of a kitten lying beside the burned building, and a maintenance worker confirmed that the little animal had been killed by the fire.

I hope that the youth(s) responsible for it will realize fully the enormity of their actions as they grow to maturity.

Kilborn makes meteoric jump to ESPN

become a reality and the show would go national, and perhaps (he would) even sell it to ESPN." In pursuit of that aspiration, Kilborn sent a tape of the show to an East Coast agency that represents several of the nation's top sportscasters, including ESPN's Berman.

"They called me back and asked if they could represent me as a sportscaster," Kilborn said. "They pitched for me for ESPN2."

The break he needed

The birth of ESPN2, a brand new spinoff to the original all-sports network, which emerged onto the scene in 1979, gave Kilborn the break he needed. And what a break. Because the network had filled some positions at ESPN2 from within — including shifting SportsCenter's prime time anchor Keith Olbermann — an opening was created at ESPN.

"They (ESPN) had seen my tape and liked me because they thought I was funny," Kilborn recalled of his introduction to ESPN in early August. "The audition went OK, but I had played it pretty straight. They said they wanted me to be funnier on the air."

For Kilborn, that represented a ticket to do what he does best: engage in his sports/comedy shtick that, for the most part, was what set him apart from the Monterey Bay's other sports anchors. Many here liked Kilborn's gig; others didn't. But ESPN did and hired the Kansas City native as a co-anchor of the network's final SportsCenter of the day.

"They particularly liked my writing style," Kilborn said. "And they're giving me a lot of freedom."

Local fans of Kilborn will have plenty of opportunities to view him in his new capacity. The same half-hour SportsCenter, which originally airs here at 11:30 p.m., also can be viewed the following morning at 4, 4:30, 5 and 5:30 a.m. When he settles into a permanent schedule, Kilborn says he expects to co-anchor SportsCenter Tuesday through Saturday with either Karl Ravech or Steve Levy.

Kilborn has already made his debut on the ESPN set, but it was a quiet one. "I didn't tell anybody about it," said Kilborn, adding that he made his parents in Minnesota, where he spent most of his days as a youth, the lone exception.

Kilborn's first effort followed last Saturday night's (Sept. 18) college football game between Colorado and Stanford.

"I was really pleased with the first show," Kilborn said with a sigh of relief.

Apparently, Kilborn's flair for comedy runs in the family.

"When I called my folks after the show, my dad answered the phone, 'Smith's residence.' He said he didn't want to claim me as his son. We had a good laugh."

A real talent...

Laughs, along with a keen knowledge of sports, has served as the springboard for Kilborn to hit the big time.

"He has a real talent for TV," said Paul Miller, former news director at KCBA, and the person responsible for bringing Kilborn to the peninsula. "I always told him that he was really talented and if he applied himself, he would make it big."

Miller, along with his wife, Kirstie Wilde, spearheaded KCBA's entrance into the local news market in September 1990. Wilde was the lone news anchor, Kilborn handled sports and Sandy Lydon did the weather. Kilborn's final sportscast on July 23 signalled the departure of the last member of KCBA's original news team.

"Craig is a really interesting, fascinating personality," Wilde said. "News is not his life — he brought a different perspective. His work is exceptional and he has an unusual wit for TV."

"He has an act that he does for TV, but in person he is very humble and self-effacing. He doesn't think he's Mr. Great."

"To tell you the truth, we weren't surprised — we thought he'd make it nationally. But the ESPN job did come down from heaven."

Miller and Wilde will have a reunion next week with Kilborn in Connecticut.

"Please tell Paul that he's buying dinner," Kilborn cracked.

Tickets for city birthday party on sale

ADVANCE TICKETS are now on sale for Carmel's 77th birthday party, which, this year, is being linked with the annual Halloween celebration.

The "Halloween Parade and Birthday Barbecue" will begin at noon with a downtown parade on Sunday, Oct. 31. The day will include a barbecue beginning at 1 p.m. at Sunset Center.

Advance tickets are available for $10 (adults) until Oct. 25. After that date, tickets will be $12. Tickets for children (12 and under) are $2. Tickets are available at the following locations:

- Carmel City Hall
  - Carmel Business Association office
  - Nielsen's Market
  - Carmel Recreation Department
- The birthday party — which also includes free ice cream for kids, a special appearance by Barney The Purple Dinosaur and dancing to the Wharfside Whalers — is being coordinated by the Carmel Celebrates Community Committee.

The committee announced it hopes to have a special award for the student who has logged the most hours since Carmel High introduced its community service program in 1990. Tentative plans call for the student to be honored in the parade and, later, to be presented with a special plaque.

According to Jack Ellena, CHS teacher and community service learning coordinator, Brittany Struve, a senior, tops all other students in the program. Ellena said Struve, over a three-year period, has logged 552 hours of community service.

Prop. 70 funds targeted in Big Sur

Alan Perlmutter, a resident of Big Sur and general partner of the River Inn, defended the restricted use of land purchased with Prop. 70 funds.

"It's very clear the public's use would be the viewing of it — not walking on it," said Perlmutter. "Unfortunately, now that its six or seven years after voting for the proposition, it's being rethought."

"The voters in California made a decision that Prop. 70 money would be used to buy land for viewing. Access means walking. Walking means development."

Otter replied the coastal land-use plan allows some critical view property still may be suitable for trails. He recommended not using Prop. 70 money to buy land that may require access. He suggested creating a different fund for purchasing land for limited access.

"It's clear the coastal commission's legal counsel disagrees with county counsel's definition," said Otter. "Words like 'may' and 'appropriate' may not apply today."

Farr came to the conclusion that the clarity of Prop. 70's language would not be resolved at the meeting. Both he and Karas agreed they would like to have more discussion on the matter.

"I would like to resolve it as fast as we can," said Karas. "Let's get the deed restriction before the supervisors and move on it."

Walktoberfest scheduled for Oct. 3

THE WALKTOBERFEST, a 10K walk around Lovers Point to benefit the American Diabetes Association, begins at 7:30 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 3, at The American Tin Cannery with a continental breakfast.

After the two-hour walk, participants will have lunch on the terrace of the Monterey Plaza Hotel, which is complimentary of the restaurants of Cannery Row.

Clint voted in as Jazz Festival trustee

By JOHN DETRO

CLINT EASTWOOD has loved jazz most of his life.

As a very young man growing up in Oakland, he got a job playing jazz piano.

For years, soundtracks of his movies have featured such excellent jazz artists as trumpeter Jon Faddis and the over-seeing eye of jazz veteran Lennie Niehaus.

Clint writes music and brought the filmic biography of jazz genius Charlie (Bird) Parker into theaters worldwide. He was executive producer for a major documentary about the tremendously creative composer Thelonious Monk.

Finally, his first production as director — Play Misty for Me — included footage shot at Monterey Jazz Festival. (Clint portrayed a jazz broadcaster at KRML Radio in Carmel.)

This background serves to demonstrate that lines of logic exist. Eastwood has been voted in as a board member of that selfsame festival.

Though Carmel's ex-mayor was unavailable for comment Wednesday, the development was confirmed by MJF board president Myron (Doc) Etienne, Jr.

"It's true," Etienne said. "Clint was elected two or three meetings ago. We wanted to respect his privacy, so we didn't make a big deal out of it."

Etienne noted: "This man has been deeply interested in jazz forever. We're pleased to welcome him. Delighted. He'll be a normal board member, functioning like all the rest of us."

The buzz about Eastwood's new post surfaced during the 36th annual festival edition at the fairgrounds last weekend.

And on Saturday night, a certain party of three stopped by the press room to pick up their official credentials: Clint and his ladylove, the actress Frances Fisher, and their infant daughter.

"What a lovely baby," one observer said. "Everyone was knocked out by her — she got a lot more attention than her parents got."

Those in charge of such matters made sure the baby received her own ID card. Photograph and all. It was clipped to her blanket. Why not? Her dad's a Monterey Jazz Festival trustee.

Clint's income ranked 30th

HE DOESN'T top the roster, but his fans needn't feel sorry for Carmel's ex-mayor.

In Forbes magazine's current listing of highest-paid entertainers for 1992 and 1993, Clint Eastwood ranks 30th out of 40. His total — $26 million.

Junior golfers learning more than the game

By GARTH MERRILL

STUDENTS WHO want to learn the links can study local courses throughout the year, courtesy of the AT & T Pebble Beach Junior Golf Association. The goal of the local non-profit organization is to provide county youths with continuous opportunities to experience golf.

"We run quality programs, and parents like to have their kids involved in those sorts of things," said R.J. Harper, association president. "We are very organized."

Harper, director of golf for Pebble Beach Resorts, is part of the association's 18-member board that oversees its administration.

"I love when I see kids' faces and the faces of their parents when they see these kids are involved and enthralled by what they are doing. The whole board feels that way," Harper said.

Ideal character builder

Harper said golf is an ideal character building experience for young people.

"The game of golf is an intriguing sport, but it's a lesson in life, too. It's one of the only games that you play by a set of rules with no official. You're the official. So you learn values about life."

R.J. HARPER, association president.

Begun in 1988, the association currently boasts about 2,500 members, including more than 1,200 junior golfers between the ages of seven and 18. The others are volunteers dedicated to getting clubs into

Junior golf championships set for Sunday at Spyglass

THE AT & T Pebble Beach Junior Golf Championships will be held Sunday, Sept. 26 at Spyglass Hill, and Sunday, Oct. 3, at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort.

Competitors have already qualified by placing among the top three in the Summer Series Tournament. Junior and senior golfers (ages 14-17) will play at Spyglass, while Middle, Bantam and Pee Wee divisions tee off at CVR the following week.

The PBJCA's Peter Hay Championship tournament on Oct. 16 is open to all members, but registration is limited to the first 110 signups.

Padres look to rebound on road Saturday after thrashing by Santa Cruz

FOLLOWING AN embarrassing 57-0 defeat at the hand of Santa Cruz High, the Carmel High Padres are hoping to rebound Saturday when they face Monte Vista Christian of Watsonville.

Last weekend against Robert Louis Stevenson, Monte Vista went nowhere, losing 35-0.

While the MVC defense has many holes, the Padres will have to be careful of the Monte Vista passing offense, which is led by quarterback Robert Myers. Although he couldn't put the ball in the end zone, he did have a decent day throwing the ball against RLS.

The game between Carmel and Monte Vista will be played in Watsonville this Saturday, with the JV playing at 10:30 a.m. and the varsity beginning at 2 p.m.

Last weekend against Santa Cruz, the Padres flat out didn't show up. Quarter back John Geisler had a less than average day, completing 9 of 22 passes for 115 yards. In addition, the Padres star running back Brent Carlson rushed only twice for negative five yards.

But don't expect this to be a trend for the season. Geisler is unlikely to repeat his sub-par performance, and Carlson did catch several passes last week to make up for what he lacked rushing the ball.

Offensive line protection was good last week for Carmel, and has remained fairly consistent so far this season. The Padres' biggest worry is defense. Several times in games this year, missed tackles have led to long gains for Carmel opponents.

If Carmel is going to stand any chance of contending once league starts, the players have got to step up their work

RLS rolls at home; Harbor's up next

HARBOR HIGH will be meeting a Robert Louis Stevenson football team Saturday that is coming off a resounding victory over Monte Vista Christian in the Pebble Beach school's home opener.

Harbor and Stevenson, both 1-1 on the young season, meet at 2 p.m. in a non-league game on Saturday, Sept. 25 in Santa Cruz. The freshmen game begins at 9 a.m.; the junior varsity contest starts at 11 a.m.

In its season opener, Harbor hung tough against Carmel High but couldn't stop the Padres in the fourth quarter, finally losing 32-28.

Last season, Stevenson registered an easy win over Harbor, but is expected to find a tougher foe this season.

That wasn't the case Saturday, Sept. 18 at RLS as the Pirates finished just one touchdown away from duplicating the team's 1992 42-0 demolition of Monte Vista Christian. RLS rolled to an easy 35-0 non-league home win.

The Pirates came together and were terrific on both offense and defense. Quarterback Tom Orradre ran in the first Pirate touchdown for seven yards, then threw two passes to tight end Gianni Aliotti to put the Pirates up 21-0 after the first half.

The Pirates held the Mustangs to 31 yards rushing and 130 total yards. Scott King, who by the end of the game had a five-man fan club among the Stevenson spectators, blocked three passes and had two of the Pirates five sacks.

Along with the team's staunch pass coverage, junior Sekou Sanyika stood out with an outstanding effort.

grams designed to make the game more accessible.

The JGA "Summer Series" of tournaments is held on some of the top golf courses on the Monterey Peninsula, which are donated for the occasions by the host clubs. This summer's final was hosted at the Fort Ord Blackhorse course, and the services of its head pro and his staff were on hand for the young golfers. Similarly, the upcoming junior championships will be held at Spyglass Hill and Carmel Valley Ranch Resort.

'Embraced the association'

Harper said the use of staff and facilities of those and a dozen other hosts — including Quail Lodge, Rancho Canada and Monterey Peninsula Country Club — illustrates how "the community has embraced the association."

"When they donate a golfing facility for a day for kids... that's a real strong statement of support and a belief in the game for kids."

Golf Outreach and Clubs for Kids are two missionary methods of making golf more available to those who otherwise might not get exposure to the game. The Outreach program sends local golf pros into physical education classes at schools such as Martin Luther King, Jr. Junior High in Seaside.

"We needed to reach those kids in the community that didn't have access to country clubs," Harper said. He added that part of that job also was to make those kids aware of golf's availability.

"There are more municipal golf courses now, like Pacific Grove and Del Monte. They have low rates. And you can go play in shorts or jeans and sneakers and go have fun."

Clubs for free

The JGA's Clubs for Kids program provides golf clubs free of charge to those who don't have them. The clubs are exchanged for others as the golfer grows in the program, then refinished for the next student of the game.

The PBJCA has invested in the future with its efforts, and it is already beginning to see pay back on its courses.

"Some of the kids in our program are very, very talented players, and at very young ages they have very high aspirations," Harper said. "So we're not only introducing the game, we're seeing kids grow up to become real stars."

Several of the area's top young players have come up through its ranks, including Scott Wang of Robert Louis Stevenson School.

A junior on the Pirates Central Coast Section Championship golf team, Wang finished second this summer at the California Junior Amateur Golf Championships in Lompoc.

"I've had a number of players who have participated in the program," said RLS coach John Powers. He said the experience of junior players shows when he takes his team to big competitions.

"Most of all they have tournament experience and on-course etiquette and skill, which a lot of kids that age don't have," Powers said. "They're over the butterflies."

The PBJCA encompasses all of Monterey County, and its allure of prime peninsula greens and professional support has drawn members from Santa Cruz, Los Gatos, San Francisco and Fresno. Anyone interested in signing up as a member or volunteer should call the association's office in Monterey at 375-0155.

Pirate Sports Scene

Pat Orosco commented on the key to the Pirates victory, "We played as a team, in unity. Our defense dominated. King and Sanyika helped to pump the team up. We were ready. We had the right mind set and we took nothing for granted."

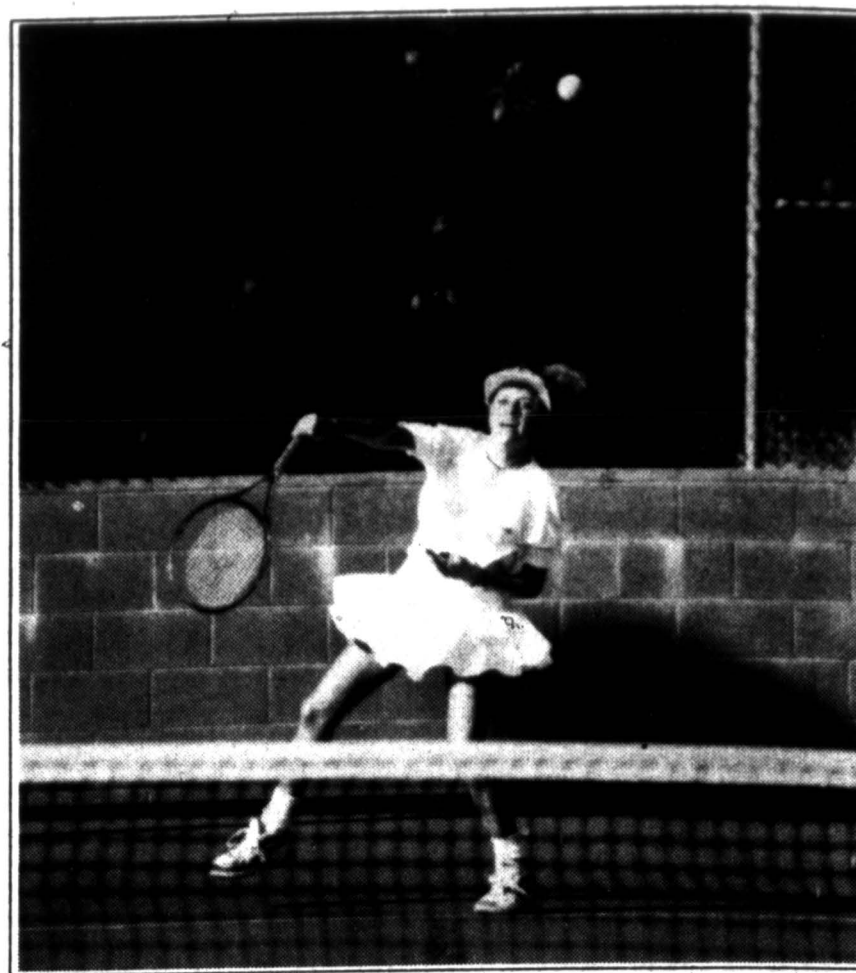

In the second half, senior Josh Bonifas finished off a 74-yard play with a seven-yard dash into the end zone. With the Pirates in control of both the game and the clock, Mike Prowell scored for the Pirates with a 48-yard punt return to seal the victory. Leland Felsenthal, in addition to enjoying a 5-for-5 day kicking extra points, was consistent with kickoffs deep into Mustang territory.

In the junior varsity game, RLS sophomores Brandon Sams and Ryan Anderson both scored touchdowns, but Monte Vista Christian triumphed 25-12.

Although Stevenson's No. 1 player, Lindsay Colker, won her match Thursday, Sept. 16 against host Santa Catalina beating Marisa MacLennan 6-0, 6-4, the Pirates saw their 62-match league streak stopped.

Catalina was victorious, 5-2, on the strength of prevailing in the close matches. RLS' Jennifer Parsons and Stacy Jones dropped their doubles match 6-

ONE OF Stevenson's bright spots in the loss to Santa Catalina was No. 1 singles player, Lindsay Colker.

2, 7-5, while Courtney Golding and Natalie Harris lost, 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (8-6).

Four-year team member, senior Sara Frye, playing in the No. 4 singles spot, picked up the only other Pirates' win in a long three set battle against Margaret Benner, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

One spectator commented, "It must be hard to play under such pressure." However, even with the cameras and the high number of spectators creating pressure for many, the RLS-Catalina match contained many great efforts.

"We were prepared, but I only knew who I was playing while everyone else didn't know," Lindsay Colker said. "I think next time we will do better because we will be more familiar with who we are playing. I needed the win against Marisa for myself. I walked away feeling good because I had been really working hard."

The Pirates play Catalina again this season at home in Pebble Beach on Oct. 7.

The Pirates bounced back from the setback the next day to dominate visiting Santa Cruz, 7-0.

RLS plays four matches in the next week — at York on Thursday, Sept. 23; home to Aptos on Friday; at Salinas on Monday; home to Gonzales on Tuesday; and at Notre Dame on Thursday, Sept. 30.

DR. JOHN from New Orleans capped the Mardi Gras Afternoon.

Jazz Tides: Festival produces some servings of pure gold

By JOHN DETRO

AS PER usual, this corner's Monterey Jazz Festival coverage seeks to honor the late critic Ralph Gleason by using the impressionistic style he employed while evaluating so many MJF editions:

—The beautiful, dark-eyed children of MJF honcho Tim Jackson and his wife Laurie. In attendance over the weekend, five-year-old Bennett and Nina (17 months) symbolize the new life brought into our annual celebration.

—Octogenarian masters Danny Barker and Milt Hinton playing and singing old songs and later sharing stories. Pure gold.

—Danny looking sharp in his derby. "I'm glad I moved back to New Orleans from New York," he said. "The living is so easy down there."

—MJF founder Jimmy Lyons and wife Laurel greeting old friends at their usual table in the Turf Club.

—The amazing range of tough younger talent in the Charlie Haden, McCoy Tyner and Slide Hampton bands. Including Jerry Gonzales, Avery Sharpe, Robin Eubanks, Sharon Freeman, Nicholas Payton, Joshua Redman, Danilo Perez, Roy Hargrove, Michael Mossman, Doug Purviance, Antonio Hart, David Sanchez.

Future legends

We got to see and hear future legends. It was easy to catch why some writers have compared Payton, New Orleans teenager, with the young Louis Armstrong. There's even a physical likeness.

—Amina Claudine Myers taking it all back to church with her soulful voice and pianism (Haden set).

—Painter Bruni Sablan's tremendously moving oil portraits in the Coffee House art exhibit: Bessie Smith, Art Tatum, Charlie Parker, John Coltrane, so many others. This woman deserves representation by a high-level Carmel gallery.

—Fine finds. British reedman Iain Ballamy, pianist Sumi Tonooka from Philadelphia, singer Baomi Butts-Bhsanji. The latter worked with the Steve Czarnecki Quartet and teaches her art at San Jose State University.

Ballamy: "The jazz life is hard — low pay, not many jobs. And it feels odd bringing American tunes back to America, where it all started. But, you know, the important thing is the music. The music."

—Families with picnics on the grass close by the Garden Stage.

—The sheer joy of Dirty Dozen Brass Band from New Orleans. Funk, bebop, parade rhythms right off the dusty streets of 1915 Storyville. One critic from Los Angeles called them "a weird group," which says more about critics than about the Dirty Dozen. Rough edges, deep grooves. Some fans left the arena to catch them

ZYDECO BANDLEADER C.J. Chenier brought a joyous crew into the fairgrounds arena. Fans chatted all weekend about the program's variety — something for everybody.

Jazz Tides: Dizzy was a fest presence

again on the Garden Stage. Their latest album features Jelly Roll Morton compositions.

—Local pianist Ace Hill saying he'll play Yoshi's in Oakland on Sept. 27. His group now has Babatunde, the great African percussionist who lives in Vallejo.

—The seemingly endless power of drummer Victor Lewis (with Bobby Watson's hot group).

—Joe Vela, who got his start at KRML Jazz Radio in Carmel, saying he's a New York City resident now. His jazz news network for personal computer people has 3,000 members in this nation and Canada. "And it's growing." He'll be a panelist at the upcoming Jazz Times Convention.

Humming to the funk

—Arena folks humming to the sweet funk of Les McCann and Eddie Harris.

—The big photo of Dizzy Gillespie behind the Turf Club bar. And Charles (The Whale) Lake, Dizzy's former road manager, saying: "The beat goes on." The Whale reported that Diz was buried near Johnny Hodges and Charlie Shavers.

—Biff Smith, jazz pianist and teacher at Robert Louis Stevenson School, looking spiffy in a MJF director's red blazer. It was his first fest in that position.

—The absorbing, lovely and fairly complex charts of Charlie Haden's orchestra plus the Oakland Youth Chorus. Mostly his writing from the Grammy-nominated Dream Keeper album of 1991.

—The hard-driving, precise salsa set of Ruben Blades and friends went until two in the morning. Ruben indicated quite firmly that, yes, he would run for president of his native Panama. When a radio interviewer asked a stock question about influences, Blades gave an unstock reply: "Albert Camus."

—Strangers volunteering comments about this edition's variety and pleasant surprises. Jazz photographer Will Wallace: "I've heard no bad raps. The programming satisfies a whole lot of different tastes."

—Joe Daley (Haden band) and Julius McKee (Dirty Dozen) just tearing it up on tuba. And Dr. John's spicy backup group had the great tenorman Red Tyler and Ronnie Cuber on baritone sax.

Annual offering?

—Doing justice to the Coffee House photo show would require hundreds of words. Milt Hinton's classic shots were supported by valuable work from all comers. May we have such an exhibit annually?

—Party types sipping their Bloody Marys at noon Saturday and Sunday.

—Afterthought. The late Charles Mingus would love that Dirty Dozen Brass Band: its planned imperfections, if you will. One could hear Mingus touches and some early Ellington.

—Jazz expert Herb Wong's strong turn as Garden Stage master of ceremonies.

—Ever-smooth Joe Williams working with top people as always: Norman Simmons (piano), Henry Johnson (guitar), Scott Steed (bass), Gerryck King (drums).

—Forever the gentleman and generous, Clark Terry saying via the printed program: "I am sure that all the soldiers of jazz, like me, are proud to be involved in the perpetuation of America's only indigenous art form."

—And Charles Lloyd spoke to the repetition-prone musicians and radio format designers who claim to represent this music: "Each time you play, it's another chance to tell the truth with freshness. You can't just go out there playing your slick, hip licks. Because, without freshness, it's not jazz."

Hour for hour, last Sunday at MJF was the most satisfying program I've experienced at any sort of festival. More about all that next week.

Blues up north

And the beat does go on. Producer Tom Mazzolini has a strong lineup for the 21st Annual San Francisco Blues Festival. It will happen this Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 25-26, in Fort Mason's Great Meadow. Ticket info and other details: (415) 979-5588.

Saturday — John Mayall and The Bluesbreakers, James Cotton Band, LaVern Baker, Bobby Parker, T.D. Bell and Ernie Bowser, Beau Jocque and The Zydeco Hi-Rollers, Mitch Woods, Zakiya Hooker (John Lee's daughter).

Sunday — Robert Cray Band, Denise LaSalle, Tommy Ridgley, Johnny Johnson, Rod Piazza and The Mighty Flyers, Maria Muldaur, Duke Jethro, Street Sounds.

You can park for free at Crissy Field and then take the free shuttle to the Great Meadow.

Short takes

—John Patitucci (he of the six-string electric bass) will bring his quintet into Kuumbwa Jazz Center on Monday night, Sept. 27. Eight o'clock kick; $13 advance or $15 at the door.

Upcoming: George Coleman Quartet with this area's Ray Drummond on bass (Oct. 4), Bill Frisell Band (Oct. 11), Roscoe Mitchell and Malachi Favors Maghostut (Oct. 18).

—Blues action. Roy Rogers and the Delta Rhythm Kings will play Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row on Monday night, Sept. 27. Newish blues act Tab Benoit follows (Sept. 30) along with Saffire the Uppity Blues Women Oct. 5). Call 649-4241.

—The Catalyst in Santa Cruz: Robert Cray (Sept. 25), Sista Monica and The Essentials (Oct. 1), Pele Juju (Oct. 2), Maria McKee (Oct. 3), Pete Escovedo Orchestra (Oct. 16), John Lee Hooker (Oct. 29).

SAUCY PIANIST Dorothy Donegan won a 10-minute standing ovation Sunday night.

Music Roundup

CAA offers free program of flamenco guitar and dance

CARMEL ART Association will present a program of flamenco guitar music there — performed by Guillermo Rios with dancing by Catalina Zambrano — at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25.

The public is invited free of charge; refreshments will be served.

Rios and Zambrano are husband and wife who have shared their art forms with audiences worldwide. His "technical brilliance" complements her "flowing feminine style and strong stage presence," according to the CAA announcement.

The association facility is on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth in Carmel. Information: 624-6176.

THE METROPOLITAN Opera International Radio Network will transmit a special broadcast of the Met's opening night performance for the 1993-94 season on Monday, Sept. 27. KAZU Public Radio will carry the material beginning at 8 p.m. with Barbara Smythe hosting locally.

The gala performance will celebrate the 25th anniversaries of the Met debuts of famed tenors Placido Domingo and Luciano Pavarotti, and will feature each singer in a role he has never before sung at the Met. They both joined the company during the 1968-69 opera season.

James Levine will conduct the Opera Orchestra and Chorus in fully-staged acts from three operas. Domingo will sing his first Siegmund in Act I of Wagner's Die Walkure. Act I of Verdi's Otello will have Pavarotti as the Moor for the first time on any stage.

Act III of Verdi's Il Trovatore also will be offered. Appearing: Kallen Esperian (Leonora), Dolores Zajick (Azucena), Domingo (Manrico), Vladimir Chernov (Count di Luna), Paul Plishka (Ferrando).

NOT TOO far away. The Barber of Seville has opened Opera San Jose's 10th anniversary season.

To celebrate the occasion, stage director Bodo Igesz of the Met was brought in to handle that action and Opera San Jose music director David Rohrbaugh is conducting.

New principal artists-in-residence Mel Ulrich (baritone) and Clifton Romig (bass) made their San Jose debuts in this work. Ulrich appears in the title role; Romig sings Don Basilio.

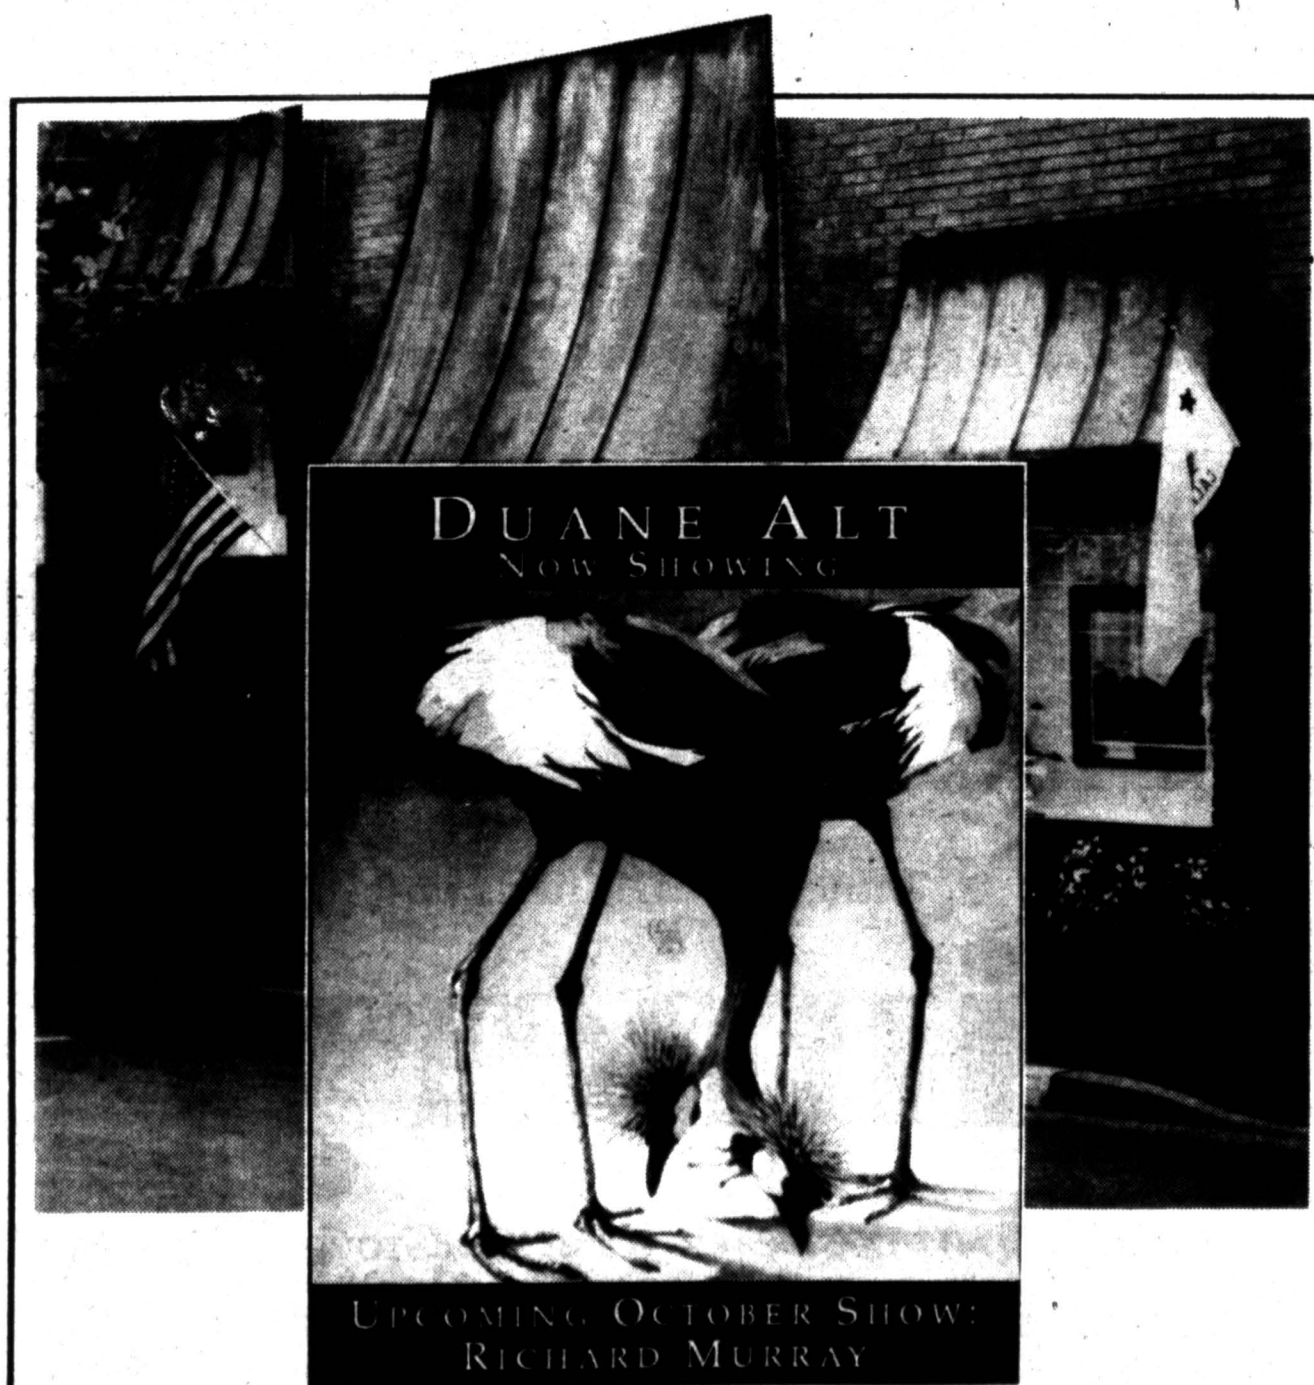

Performance dates: Sept. 24, 25, 26 (matinee), 28, 30; Oct. 2 and 3 (matinee).

Call Ticketmaster at 1-998-2277.

Matinees start at 3 p.m. and all other performances at 8 p.m. Opera San Jose uses the Montgomery Theater on Market at San Carlos.

Simpson's: The Perfect Choice

FOR TRADITIONAL dining at its best, Simpson's Restaurant in Carmel is the perfect choice.

After two years of restoration, Larry and Dana Little have opened the restaurant's doors once again for lunch and dinner.

The Little family has owned Simpson's for 35 years, and local customers from the past will be surprised to see how much of the old restaurant has been retained.

"It's great," said Larry Little. "Old friends are coming by to visit. They tell us how much they have missed our traditional style of dining. We are having fun with it."

Simpson's new look is "American eclectic" with soft, rich green walls, a grand theatrical mural of a Maxfield Parrish painting and lush accessories.

The menus are dedicated to the excellence that was, and is, Parrish, with two of his distinctly unique paintings on the cover.

Popular lunch dish

One of the most popular lunch dishes at Simpson's is the individual quiche with a perfect light, flaky crust, cherry tomatoes, shallots, and mushrooms served with fresh fruit and a wonderful creamy poppyseed dressing.

Other favorites are the crab cakes with rice or potatoes, sand dabs and Simpson's great chicken salad.

The soup du jour is always a treat. The tomato ginger is a delightful compliment to any one of the house salads.

There are several house wines offered at Simpson's for both lunch and dinner. There's a Semi Chardonnay, Shenandoah Zinfandel and, one of the best sellers, the Kendall-Jackson Cabernet.

Simpson's angel cake — a light, spongy, white cake made without shortening or egg yolks and topped with whipping cream, almonds and vanilla — is an excellent traditional choice for dessert.

The raspberry and ollaliberry tarts — large cakes with fresh berries throughout and covered with fresh whipped cream — are ideal for a mid-day cake and coffee visit with friends.

The service at Simpson's is friendly, efficient and attentive. The atmosphere is formal but relaxed, and the large dining room is perfect for accommodating large parties.

At the same time, the tables are set far enough apart, which provides a great place to have a private business lunch or quiet romantic dinner.

Acoustic groups join in benefit for KAZU Radio

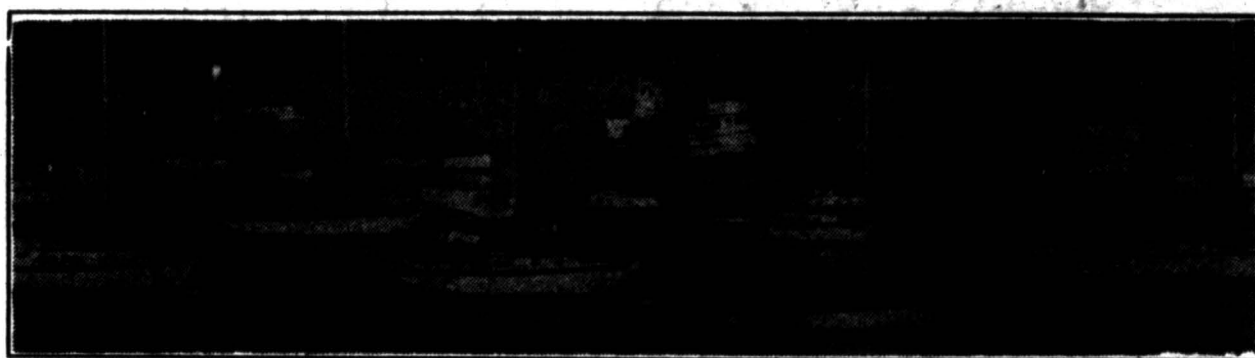

THE ACOUSTIC trio City Folk (above) will join Guardabarranco, strong voice from Latin America's New Song Movement, in one show beginning at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24, at the Paul Masson Wine Tasting Room on Cannery Row.

This concert is a benefit for KAZU Public Radio. Tickets cost $10 advance and $12 at the door. (They're available now at Pacific Grove's KAZU, Recycled Records in Monterey and Bookworks of Pacific Grove.)

A brother and sister duo from Nicaragua, Salvador and Katia Cardenal, makes up Guardabarranco. Their original songs are on two albums produced by Jackson Browne and released on Holly Near's Redwood Records.

City Folk is a perennial local favorite. The unit's second release is called Shadows on the Wall.

Yet another romance story without a heart

By CRAIG ARNOTT

TRUE ROMANCE is an interesting mess: a rather tender love story padded with numbing, outrageous violence.

But it's nothing that seems like actual violence; this is Hollywood violence, with adoring closeups of the recently mutilated, and well-lit, slow motion sequences of flying bodies and hemorrhages.

Christian Slater plays Clarence Worley, a somewhat meek Detroit denizen who avidly watches kung-fu movies and is sedately employed at a comic bookstore. His boss decides to honor Clarence's birthday by hiring Alabama (Patricia Arquette), a novice call girl, to entertain him. The situation becomes more serious when Alabama falls for Clarence and decides to leave her twisted pimp Drexel (Gary Oldman).

In a noble and caring gesture, Clarence determines that the best way to a new life with Alabama is for him to simply waste Drexel. Predictably, the implementation of this plan is muddled when drugs, the mob, and the police are introduced. The film soon becomes a manic free-for-all, with heavy doses of rude (but not wholly unexpected) surprises as the hapless lovers thread their way to Los Angeles.

It's easy to look at the premise for True Romance as a playful jab at the many tired devices used in current romantic thrillers. But Director Tony Scott, whose credits include Beverly Hills Cop II and Top Gun, kills most of the written irony with a reliance on slick, empty shots and the aforementioned infatuation with violence.

However, owing to Quentin Tarantino's deft, spare handling of the screenplay, the central relationship between Clarence and Alabama remains remarkably believable. And each supporting character is given enough space and dialogue to develop a distinct identity, a rare occurrence in films of this genre.

Among the acting standouts are Dennis Hopper as Clarence's beleaguered father Cliff, and also Slater, who has less of the gimmicky smirk he's employed in many of his prior films. The rest of the cast deliver suitably absurd performances, from Val Kilmer as Elvis Presley to Christopher Walken as a mafia enforcer.

True Romance doesn't maintain the irreverent spirit it developed in the first quirky scenes between Slater and Arquette. It too quickly surrenders to the cheap, easy thrill and becomes another romance story without a heart.

Concierge with a dream

MICHAEL J. FOX stars in For Love Or Money, a romantic comedy due to hit the theaters on Oct. 1. Doug Ireland, as played by Fox, is a concierge at The Bradbury, one of New York's most exclusive hotels. But he has a dream of his own — and that is to build his own luxury hotel.

He finally meets an investor who is willing to front the money for a price: Ireland must "baby-sit" the investor's beautiful young mistress, Andy, played by Gabrielle Anwar (right, in photo at left).

An unexpected romance ensues between Doug and Andy, and the concierge with big dreams has a big dilemma — he must decide if it's love or money that will make him happy.

The film is directed by Barry Sonnenfeld (The Addams Family) and produced by Brian Grazer (Parenthood).

Festival of Firsts kicks off Monday at Sunset Theater

THIS YEAR'S Festival of Firsts opens at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 27, in Sunset Center Theater.

That's the first of two evenings on which the finalist scripts will get readings. The public is invited free of charge.

After each reading, there will be an open critique chaired by Dan Gotch, dramaturg and development director for GroveMont Theater. The audience is invited to join actors, directors and a panel of local theater professionals in discussion.

Monday, Sept. 27 — Chuck Thurman directs Dream Machines by New Jersey playwright William Van Nostran.

"It's a historical drama about the dawn of the electrical age in America," says Chuck. "The play centers around the conflict between Nikola Tesla, young immigrant inventor, and Thomas Edison."

Readers include Thurman, Keith Decker, Jim Kinney, James Brady, Erik Thurman.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 28 — Veronica's Position by New Yorker Rich Orloff. Directed by Colleen Finnegan.

"This comedy of manners is set in a posh hotel suite," Colleen reports. "The play embraces the stormy private life of a fiftysomething superstar of stage and screen."

A fully-staged production of the competition winner will have its premiere performances at Sunset Center Sept. 30-Oct. 3 under Robin McKee's direction. It's The Far End of the Earth by Washington State writer Keith McGregor.

FRIENDS OF Sunset Center Foundation will honor their volunteers by hosting the GroveMont production of Hamlet on Thursday evening, Sept. 23. All interested parties are invited.

Before the play, there will be a buffet dinner at the Forest Theater starting at 6:30.

Dinner and play cost $15. Reservations may be made by calling Anne Bell at 624-3942.

IN THIS show, Rosamond Goodrich portrays a former aviatrix who becomes a victim of aphasia following a stroke.

Arthur Kopit's Wings may be seen at Cherry Foundation in Carmel through Sunday, Sept. 26. Curtain at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

"Goodrich turns to the very marrow of incarnate aloneness within her character and turns out a virtuoso performance," according to Pine Cone drama critic John Dotson.

Directed by Nick Zanides, the cast includes Lenore Opalach, Judy Peiken, Nicole Zanides, Sidney Lester, Joseph Robinis, Justin Cully.

Tickets cost $12 (general) and $10 (students, seniors, military). Call 655-3200 for reservations.

MONTEREY PENINSULA College Drama Department will open Barbara Lebow's A Shayna Maidel on Wednesday evening, Sept. 29, in the on-campus SRO Theater. The run will last through Oct. 10.

Performances will start at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sundays. Same reservation number — 646-3200.

Diann Matheson directs the drama which looks at young Rose White of New York City and her older sister — a survivor of the Holocaust who believes her husband still will be found alive.

The cast includes Marie Avant, Rebecca Meyer, Joe Yedlicka, Barbara Zito, Connie Erickson.

WHARF THEATER will open Bernard Slade's Same Time, Next Year at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24. Then the show will be offered on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights through Oct. 30.

JOHN RUTTER and David Grant wrote a musical adaptation of Kenneth Grahame's The Wind in the Willows. This will be performed three times by Monterey Peninsula Choral Society on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26.

The musical entertainment for families and children will be done at 1:30, 3:00 and 4:30 at the Music Hall of Monterey Peninsula College. Tickets cost $5 (adults), $2 (children), $12 (family of four).

Stephanie McMillan will take calls about ducats. Her number: 384-5415.

Art Roundup: Balyon shows, Casay reception coming

CARMEL ART Walk continues throughout September — more than 40 galleries and studios staying open from 6 to 9 p.m. Fridays. The special events announced for Sept. 24:

- New Masters Gallery on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh. Whimsical on-canvas stories by Merry Kohn will be on display. Information: 624-1511.

- Balyon Gallery on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Sneak preview of Artist Rendez-vous — one-man show for Andre Balyon. Includes works completed from a recent excursion to the Midwest. Information: 624-4355.

CLASSIC ART Gallery of Carmel (Sixth and San Carlos) plans a champagne reception at which lovers of fine painting may meet Anthony Casay.

The special occasion will run from 6 until 9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25 and will kick off his one-man show at the venue.

Gallery spokespersons say Casay will be on hand for the event.

His exhibit carries the title Legend of the Sea.

Known widely as "the synonym for seascape art in America," Casay paints gardens and pathways, lush landscapes and tropical underwater scenes as well. But, according to program notes, his love for the sea and shores leads him to devote "a majority of his time" depicting romantic sunsets and moon-washed seascapes.

CENTRAL COAST Art Association will host a free public gathering at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 27, in Room 10 of Sunset Center. Carmel art gallery owner Anne Cunningham will give a watercolor demonstration and discuss prints and sales.

CCAA notes that member Evelyn Wood will be exhibiting her ABC's of Gems show (paintings and jewelry) at the fairgrounds on Sept. 25-26. She'll be part of Carmel Valley Gem and Mineral Society's 34th annual spread out there.

CENTER FOR Photographic Art in the Sunset Complex makes known a landscape photography workshop by Bob Dawson on Saturday, Sept. 25. Call-in reservations are encouraged — 625-5181.

Also, Center Director Dennis Wise sets a deadline of 3 p.m. on Oct. 18 for the Third Annual Photographic Juried Exhibition.

General rules and the fee structure may be checked out by calling him at the local facility.

THUNDERBIRD GALLERY in The Barnyard offers a unique show — paintings in beeswax by Bonnie Maffei. It closes Sept. 27.

"Here is my first public showing since I returned to this country two years ago," she says. "Be prepared for a virtual bath in color."

SANTA CATALINA School Gallery will hold a reception for photographer Barbara Blevens from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24.

Then her show will stay up through Oct. 23. It's called Water, Wings and Wonder — Images of a Winter Visit to Italy.

PACIFIC GROVE Art Center plans a solo show by Julie Smith — A Night at the Ballet.

The opening reception will run from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1, with the exhibit remaining through Nov. 5, it was stated this week.

Featured will be paintings, drawings and collages of ballet dancers in class, rehearsal and performance. There also will be studies of costumes.

Says Smith: "A portion of all proceeds will go to Ballet Fantasque and Peninsula Ballet Center in appreciation for their permission to draw and photograph their dancers."

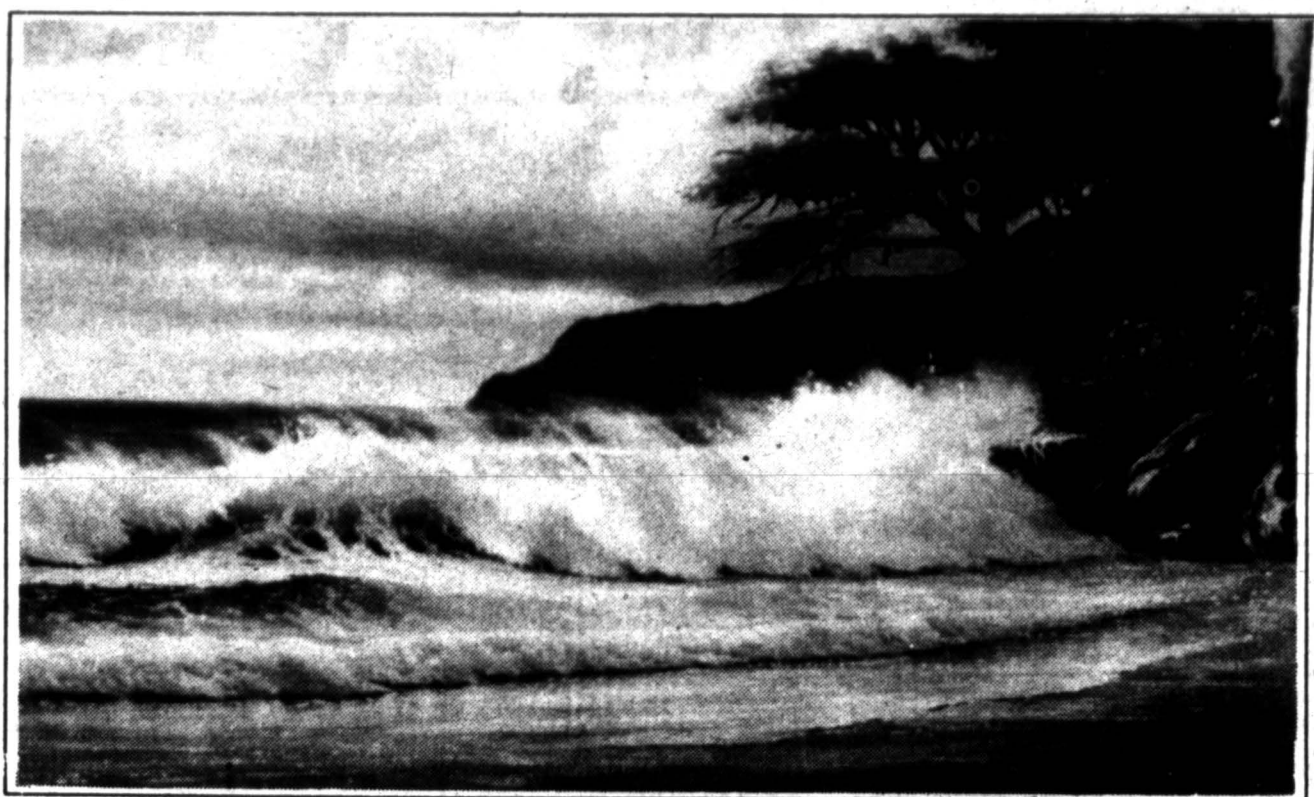

Information: 375-2208 or 649-8230.

WESTON GALLERY of Carmel (Sixth near Lincoln) is showing the Paris photos of Tomio Seike. Through Oct. 20.

THE CURRENT exhibit at Monterey Airport's mezzanine gallery features bridal gowns, accessories and photographs of wedding ceremonies from 1850 to 1950.

Assembled from local collections (public and private), the show was curated by Susan Klusmire and Meg Walden with exhibition design by Leslie Lepetich. It will run through Oct. 31.

Sponsors: City of Monterey, Monterey History and Art Association Costume Collection, Monterey County Parks.

By Anthony Casay: at Classic Art Gallery.

Mission Fiesta, Big Sur Oktoberfest ring in Autumn

CARMEL MISSION Basilica will celebrate the 29th annual Fiesta de San Carlos Borromeo in the courtyard on Sunday, Sept. 26.

Fiesta coordinator Bruna Odello says a chicken barbecue will be served there from noon until 5 p.m. Cost: $7 per person.

Also available for hungry folks will be tacos, burritos, cotton candy, hot dogs, pop corn, ice cream, soft drinks — along with wine and beer.

On the entertainment schedule are the musicians known as Mariachi Mixtlan, the Ballet Folklorico dance troupe headed up by Socorro Valdez, marimba players Bruce and Judy Cowan.

"Admission is free," Odello notes. "There also will be games and 64 arts and crafts booths from the peninsula and neighboring areas. Many lovely gift items will be on display."

LOOKING SOUTH, the fourth annual Oktoberfest in Big Sur will happen Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 25-26, at River Inn Resort.

Arts and crafts, German food and beer, live entertainment, games — these will highlight the celebration.

Alan Perlmutter, general partner of River Inn, names these featured foods: Sauerbraten, Rouladen, Kasseler Rippespeer and several varieties of German sausages. "Everything will be prepared by Chef Carl Shadwell," Perlmutter says.

A German "oompah band" — Der Burgemeisters — will play on the deck beside the Big Sur River on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Saturday night entertainment will be provided by The Big Sur Natives. These musicians and dancers grew out of the Barefoot Band and have been featured regularly at River Inn.

Proceeds from the evening's program ($5 door charge) will go to Big Sur's Apple Pie School. Information: 667-2700 or 1-800-548-3610.

OVER AT Carmel Valley Community Park, the fourth annual Surfin' Safari will take place on Sunday, Sept. 26.

The family-type occasion will feature food and games "by each school class and youth organization of the community," CV Youth Center spokespersons say.

Musical entertainment will come from Close Enuff. Other elements: invitational volleyball tournament, dance, contests — and prizes for the ugliest Hawaiian shirt.

Admission and the music carry no cost. Game and food booths will request donations.

The park is 10 miles from Highway 1 or a few minutes east of Laureles Grade on Ford Rd. — just west of Carmel Valley Village. Information: 659-3983.

THE RED Arrows, acrobatic jet team from England's Royal Air Force, will be the featured attraction at the California International Airshow in Salinas (Oct. 2-3), it was announced this week.

Thus, Red Arrow members will be making their first appearance in the United States in more than a decade. Airshow data number: 754-1983.

VOLUNTEERS ARE asked to join in. The project? Beautify and restore historic areas of the Naval Postgraduate School.

The newly-formed Historical Botanical Society will work from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 25.

The plan — prepare soil, remove weeds, rebuild beds and replace plants to restore the once world-famous Arizona Garden.

"At the turn of the century," says Lt. Stephen Rollins, "the Hotel Del Monte's beautifully landscaped gardens and grounds were known as the finest west of the Mississippi. Hotel guests would spend hours searching for rare and unusual species."

"The hotel's Arizona Garden was one of the first desert-style gardens ever established. It covered several acres and had volcanic stone-lined beds containing countless varieties of succulents and plants from all over the world. Some 50 of these beds remain in the area between Menneken Loop and Morse Drive."

Volunteers should bring gloves and hand tools, especially trowels and clippers, and box lunch if desired. Drinks and refreshments will be provided.

BRAZILIAN AUTHOR Paulo Coelho will be at Thunderbird Books in The Barnyard on Friday evening, Sept. 24.

At 7 p.m., the word was, he will lecture and then welcome a question and answer session in The Whole Life Center. He also will sign copies of his magical book The Alchemist.

In Pacific Grove, the Museum of Natural History will hold a reception at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 23, for authors and researchers of The Monterey County Bird Breeding Atlas.

This publication documents the precise distribution of breeding birds and is expected to be an influential document in the planning process. The public is invited to attend the special occasion.

Leslie Tryon, Carmel Valley writer and artist, will sign her new book from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, at Mulberry bookshop for children in Pacific Grove (169 Fountain). Its title: Albert's Field Trip.

"The book is based on the very real activities at Gizdich Apple Ranch in Watsonville," she says, "and illustrates the typical happenings on any grade school field trip."

SEASIDE COMMUNITY Services Department is sponsoring a no-cost dance for senior citizens from 2 to 5 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 30, at Oldemeyer Center. Refreshments will be served and live music provided.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL Foundation and College Hall of Fame (Monterey County Chapter) is organizing a group trip to Stanford Stadium on Oct. 2 when The Cardinal plays Notre Dame.

The ticket package costs $65 apiece. Those attending will leave by bus at 8:30 a.m. that day from the Monterey Peninsula College parking lot.

For details, call Butch Semas (372-4929).

FUTURE FILE: Congregation Beth Israel's Sixth Annual Jewish Food Festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10, at the Synagogue in Carmel Valley.

BLUES GUITARIST Roy Rogers will bring his brilliance into Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row on Monday night, Sept. 27.

• Girls Swimming

The Padre swimmers opened up their season last Thursday with a lopsided victory at North Salinas High. Carmel won every event except for one en route to a 112-38 win. Double winners included Lauren Johnson in the 50 and 100 freestyles, Aiyana White in the 200 and 500 freestyles and Dora Swearingen in the 200 Individual Medley and the 100 Butterfly. Other winners included Morgan Wilson and the three relay teams.

"As a team we showed a lot of enthusiasm, and our young swimmers showed great potential," said assistant coach Mike Lewis.

• Water Polo

The Padres' water polo team also hit the pool for their first game last weekend. Traveling to Merced for a 32-team tournament, the Padres endured some tough losses and registered some impressive victories on their way to a 2-3 record.

Starting the tournament off with powerhouse Jesuit didn't bode well for Carmel, but the Padres kept it close for a 13-7 loss. The Padres went into the fourth quarter ahead in their next game against Novato, but couldn't hold on, losing 11-9.

Carmel came right back in their third contest, scoring an impressive 10-2 win at the expense of Downey. Atwater, the Padres' fourth opponent, marked another tough loss. This was a close, well played battle that Atwater managed to pull out 12-10. Taking out their frustrations on Byer, the Padres finished off with an 18-4 win.

Leading scorers for the tournament included Kyle Nichols with 14 goals and 8 assists, Mike Allaire and Steve Bonafant with 11 goals and 6 assists each, and John Rigni with 9 goals and 7 assists.

• Girls Tennis

Carmel opened up its Mission Trail Athletic League season on Thursday, Sept. 16, by defeating Notre Dame High, 4-3. This match came down to the wire, with the Padre doubles teams providing the deciding victories. The teams of Lisa Battaglia-Navarre Bautista and Arianne Bautista-Jessica Moss came through in the clutch. Singles players Shannon Dougherty and Corrina Tuluna also won their matches.

The Padres brought their undefeated record into a home match on Friday, but powerful Aptos handed Carmel its first loss.

• Girls Volleyball

Coming into this week, the Padres' volleyball team had been playing well, but coming up short. They took out these frustrations on lowly Seaside, crushing them, 3-0. This game was marked by strong all-round play, with seniors Bridgit Bohnen and Robin Retherford leading the way.

The Padres then came home to take on perennial title contender Notre Dame, only to fall, 3-0. The first game was decided by only a two point margin, with the powerful serving of Allison Bohnen keeping the Padres in the game.
